Partly cloudy and colder Friday with scattered snow flurries and high temperatures in the 30s.

When Gov. Rockefeller says he doesn't "want to be president" he might just be practicing penmanship.

Top Of The Morning

WEATHER

Temperatures will go from cold to warmer to colder according to a five-day forecast for Saturday through Wednesday. Variable cloudiness and cold with a chance of scattered snow flurries through Saturday, becoming a little warmer the first of next week, and then colder by midweek. High Friday near 30. Low Friday night 18. High Saturday 28. Probability of precipitation is 30 per cent through Saturday. Snow flurries are expected over the weekend and general snow in northwestern Pennsylvania. Winds are northwesterly at 10 to 15 mph. Yesterday's local 7 a.m. report: no precipitation, river level 7.7 and rising, high 39 and low 28.

Kinzua Dam Report

Pool level 1304.21. Upstream temperature 38; downstream 38. Reading at the Warren gauge 7.77 and rising.

WARREN COUNTY

The elimination of mileage charges for Pittsfield and Irvine telephone customers, now included in Youngsville's extended base calling area, have resulted in rate reductions totaling $6,453 a year.

A new general printing shop, located just off the three-lane in North Warren, began operations Dec. 1. The Craftsman Printers, Inc., is operated by William Bauer and Tim Atwell.

Warren borough's sanitary authority, Sheffield's municipal authority, and the Youngsville borough sewer department have been awarded state grants toward the costs of operating sewage treatment plants.

Fire last night destroyed the two-story home of the Henry Dyers, Baker Hill, Spring Creek. There were apparently no injuries. Mr. Dyer, reportedly, was at Corry Hospital visiting his ill wife.

THE NATION

The United States and six other members of the "Gold Pool" were reliably reported to have agreed upon a new way to make the pool a more formal institution for stabilizing gold markets and supplying it with vast resources. The members, it was understood, will deposit large amounts of their gold with the pool. In return they will receive a sort of "bankbook" amounting to a claim on the pool's assets, whether gold or dollars. This claim will count in the nations' reserves, just as the deposited gold had counted previously.

The congressional drive for adjournment hit a surprise snag when the house rejected a compromise $2.3 billion foreign aid appropriation. Within hours, House and Senate negotiators agreed on a new foreign aid package, slicing another $20 million from what already was the lowest money figure in the program's stormy 20-year history.

Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House ways and means committee, has taken a new tack in his drive for economy in government. It appears to doom, for the near future, any prospect of enactment of tax credits against college tuition payments, private industry job training programs for the poor and a host of other proposed programs. In a speech on the House floor, he denounced tax credits as a "hidden" form of government spending that could be costlier than a direct expenditure program.

THE WORLD

Greece's military government was reported to be entrenched more strongly than ever in the wake of what was termed the fiasco of King Constantine's attempted counter-coup against the colonels who seized power last April 21. Col. George Papadopoulos, premier and defense minister of the military government, called a news conference to give an official outline of the 17 hours of drama that ended with the king's flight into exile with his family. The last evidences of a potential civil war in the country were said to have vanished.

The Soviet Vietnamese armed forces suffered their heaviest death toll of the year last week. A total of 380 men were said to have been killed, 864 wounded and 59 listed as missing. The weekly summary disclosed also that 194 American and 21 Allied servicemen were killed in action.

Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada disclosed that he had decided to resign as leader of the Liberal party and as prime minister, but would continue in both posts until a convention selected a successor.

SPORTS

Warren's wrestling team piled up points early, then held off a strong Erie East challenge to post an impressive 28-17 triumph over the Warriors here last night. Bob Sequist, Steve Jones and Jim Mead registered pins for the Dragons and Dane Sorensen, Doug Sorensen, Mike Maines and Lee Bryan took decisions, Page 6.

The final heavy sports schedule before the holidays is on tap for county teams tonight. In basketball, only Sheffield is at home. The Wolverines host East Forest, Warren is at McDowell, Youngsville travels to Titusville and Tidoute is back in action at Jamestown, Pa. Eisenhower's wrestling team competes at a two-day tournament at Randolph, N.Y. Page 6.

Baltimore Colts' quarterback Johnny Unitas has been named the Most Valuable Player in the National Football League, but he isn't impressed. The honor "doesn't help the team on the scoreboard," noted the All-Pro star, Page 7.

Mel Farr, the former UCLA star now with the Detroit Lions was named the NFL's Rookie-of-the-Year yesterday. The Lions' said the award was one of his first season goals in the league, Page 7.

Kentucky Wesleyan held the number two position on this week's AP small college basketball poll despite two close victories. San Diego State remained the top small team, Page 7.

APPOINTED REGENT

In fast moving events in Greece, Lt. Gen. Yeorulos Zoiakis, left, former under secretary of defense under King Constantine, was appointed regent as the king and his family fled to Rome after being overthrown by the Junta.

At right is Stilianos Patacos, former minister of the interior, was reported named vice premier when the military junta declared Constantine stripped of his royal prerogatives.

U.S. Fighter-Bombers Duel with MIGs in Viet

SAIGON (AP) — Dispatches from Hanoi reported U.S. jet squadrons, whose combat missions have been restricted lately by monsoon clouds over North Vietnam, staged a massive raid Thursday on Hanoi and its outskirts.

There was no immediate American comment.

The cloud cover that shielded Hanoi through much of this fall seemed Wednesday to be breaking up.

Allied warnings to North Vietnamese civilians to stay away from military targets had been reiterated three weeks ago in a

Guerrillas Try to Exploit Political Situation in Viet

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — The new political program of the South Vietnamese Communist guerrillas is being interpreted by American analysts as a fresh effort to exploit the fluid political situation in South Vietnam.

The guerrillas, analysts believe, are attempting to gain non-Communist allies by combining a call for "joint action" against the United States and the Saigon government with vague but appealing promises to most segments of South Vietnamese society.

The program was announced on Sept. 1, two days before the South Vietnamese presidential

Prime Minister Lester Pearson Has Resigned

(c) N.Y. Times News Service OTTAWA — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson announced Thursday that he is retiring, and he submitted his resignation as leader of Canada's liberal party.

Pearson, whose career in diplomacy led to a Nobel Prize for peace, said he would carry on as Prime Minister until his party has the opportunity to choose a successor. This will probably be next March or April.

He has declared himself to be in good health and his ruddy complexion and trim appearance make him look younger than his 70 years.

"It is with much regret that I have come to this decision," said Pearson in a resignation letter to Sen. John Nichol, President of the Liberal Federation of Canada. "But I am convinced it is right."

Pearson's retirement was unexpected, although his timing caught Ottawa by surprise. He announced his decision at a news conference here.

In recent weeks, Pearson has hinted his intention to leave public life at the close of Canada's centennial year. Reportedly, he has offers from Canadian and American universities to occupy chairs enabling him to lecture and write on international affairs and politics.

The centennial year celebrating 100 years of confederation was a project close to Pearson's heart.

The liberal party's executive council meets in Ottawa next Sunday. The council will then have the opportunity of scheduling a leadership meeting early next year.

drop of 3.2-million propaganda leaflets over Hanoi. The first account of the new raid came from the Soviet news agency Tass. Tass said about 50 planes hit the North Vietnamese capital's "residential quarters and other objectives," the nature of which it did not specify.

A broadcast dispatch of Hanoi's official Vietnam News Agency declared four planes were shot down. It said ground fire felled three in the Hanoi area and the fourth was destroyed in a dogfight 50 miles to the southeast, over Thai Binh Province.

The raiders attacked "a number of populous areas in the center and on the outskirts of Hanoi," it said.

Speaking of armament used to inhibit Red anti-aircraft fire, Tass said the fliers loosed "delayed-action pellet bombs designed to kill civilians."

The American warning to Hanoi civilians, dropped by fliers Nov. 22, had been explicit. "Bombing is not directed at you," the leaflets said. "Don't risk your life. Stay away from all military targets such as: Oil tanks and other petroleum storage areas; bridges, highways, railroads and waterways used to carry military supplies and troops; barracks, gun emplacements, all military installations, electrical power stations and military port facilities."

The northeast monsoon, prevalent through the winter, affects northern provinces of South Vietnam too and U.S. troops at times are battling Communists in drenching rain.

elections, by the guerrillas' clandestine liberation radio. It is the first such program enunciated by the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front since the NLF's initial program was made public on Dec. 20, 1960, the day the organization was officially founded. The Front is the political arm of the Viet Cong guerrillas.

Some analysts believe the program is also aimed at winning support in the US for an American withdrawal from South Vietnam and the formation of a coalition government there which would be dominated by the Communists.

One analyst pointed as evidence for this additional interpretation to an alleged indoctrination lesson for the NLF cadres, which was captured recently by allied forces. The document is dated Sept. 1. It states that the immediate objective of the current winter-spring offensive of the Communist forces in the south as well as the Front's propaganda efforts is to "force" the US "to withdraw from South Vietnam after recognizing a broad coalition government to be formed in South Vietnam with the key role by the NLF."

P.O. Will Be Open Late Sat.

A post office window will be open for four extra hours Saturday for the benefit of late shoppers and mailers.

Postmaster Frank A. Fagan announced Thursday that stamp and parcel post window will be open until 4 p.m., and issued a reminder about early mailing and the addition of ZIP Codes to letters and cards.

Many letters and greeting cards, according to Fagan, are being returned due to insufficient postage for overseas delivery, especially with air mail postage rates. He suggests that stamp window about the correct rates before mailing letters to foreign countries.

BULLETIN

SPRING CREEK — Fire late last night destroyed the Henry Dyer residence, a large, two-story frame home on Baker Hill, Spring Creek as Mr. Dyer reportedly was at Corry Hospital visiting his ill wife. Firemen from the Spring Creek and Columbus departments battled the blaze, that reportedly started in the area of the kitchen and spread. No one was reported in the house at the time of the fire.

Military Government Firmly Entrenched After King Flees

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The military government ruled Greece unchallenged Thursday after crushing a royal counter-coup that sent King Constantine fleeing to Rome and exile. But victory only increased Greece's isolation from its Western allies.

With the flight of the king, the State Department in Washington said the United States is withholding recognition of the military regime. The United States previously had shown its displeasure with last April's army coup by withholding all arms shipments to Greece, an ally in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson said in London that British diplomatic relations with the military government are no longer valid because the king has left the country.

The fast breaking events in Greece—over in less than 24 hours—left the fate of the monarchy and Greece's 104-year-old royal dynasty in doubt.

Col. George Papadopoulos, the new premier and strong man of the regime that seized power in a military coup April 21, said Greece would continue to be a "constitutional monarchy," but with a regent instead of a king.

Appointed as regent was Lt. Gen. George Zoiakis, a relative unknown with no royal blood.

In a broadcast, Papadopoulos told the nation: "The anti-nationalist conspiracy has been crushed. The conspirators have been ousted."

Then an Athens broadcast for the first time told the nation of eight million that the king had fled to Rome.

The military regime was reported strengthening its hold on the nation by arresting officers believed to be monarchists, and conservative politicians. At least three generals who came out for the king were known to be in custody.

In an apparent attempt to strengthen unity in the shaken ranks of the army, the government offered amnesty to all officers who had been "misled by their superiors."

Athens appeared calm and normal. It showed no indication that history had been written overnight.

Agree to Make Gold Pool More Formal Institution

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — The United States and the six other members of the gold pool were reliably reported Thursday to have agreed upon a new way to make the pool a more formal institution for stabilizing gold markets and supplying it with vast resources.

The members, it is understood, will deposit large amounts of their gold with the pool. In return they will receive a sort of "bankbook" amounting to a claim on the pool's assets, whether gold or dollars. This claim will count in the nation's reserves, just as the deposited gold had counted previously.

The information did not come from U.S. government sources. The Treasury, like the governments of other pool members, maintained its policy of silence, thought an announcement of some sort is regarded as inevitable soon.

The information was, however, considered reliable. The basic purpose of the new move is to demonstrate to gold speculators that there is an almost infinite amount of resources arrayed against them. The members of the pool have more than $26 billion of gold among them.

The pool's purpose will continue basically the same as before—to supply gold in the London market as needed to meet waves of demand and hold the price firm at $35 an ounce, the established world monetary price. But it apparently will be set up as a full-fledged institution.

Until now the Bank of England has sold gold as needed to control the price and then has presented the "bill" to the members at the end of the month.

Compromise Foreign Aid Bill Rejected by House

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — The drive of Congress for adjournment hit a surprise snag Thursday when the House rejected a compromise $2.3 billion foreign aid appropriation.

Within hours, House and Senate negotiators agreed on a new foreign aid package, slicing another $20 million from what already was the lowest money figure in the program's stormy 20-year history.

The House is to act on the new compromise Friday. If approved, the measure would go to the Senate for final action.

Thursday's rebuff was the second in a row for President Johnson Wednesday, a House-Senate conference had agreed on the $2.3 billion figure, nearly $1 billion under the administration's request.

It had been expected that since the figure was so low in comparison to what Johnson had asked for, the economy-minded House would accept it.

But Republicans and Southern Democrats, insisting on still deeper cuts, joined forces to send the bill back to conference. The vote was 196 to 185.

Democratic leaders were stunned. Until then, prospects were bright for adjournment either late Friday or sometime Saturday.

It was uncertain Thursday night whether the weekend target for adjournment could now be met. There was some chance that House economy forces might seek even bigger cuts in foreign aid.

They used sophisticated laboratory techniques to separate the synthetic material from the original DNA. Then they used the synthetic DNA for further rounds of replication, or continuing cycles of independent existence.

The scientists froze samples of each succeeding version of synthetic DNA and shipped them to Dr. Sinsheimer at Pasadena. Dr. Sinsheimer tested the samples' ability to replicate the complete viruses. And they did replicate, producing fully active synthetic DNA viruses exactly like the original, which were capable of invading other bacteria, Sinsheimer said.

Dr. Sinsheimer said, "First, the research determined that there are two enzymes, DNA polymerase and DNA ligase, that carry out what we know to be the first step in the infective process in nature."

"Second, considering that there are 5,000 nucleotides—genetic compounds—in the viral DNA, the work also demonstrated that the copying of the DNA blueprint in the test tube must have been very good. There could not have been many mistakes."

McCarthy Challenge Forces White House to Move Faster

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's challenge to the re-nomination of President Johnson has forced the White House to move up its political calendar by six months.

"We've had to change our plans to do what President Kennedy did in 1960," a high administration source said Thursday. "We're going to run what amounts to a preview of a national campaign, and then we're going to run a national campaign."

Although the emergence of a Democratic primary rival has accelerated political recruiting, party organizing in primary states and the drafting of election-year strategy, the President's allies see Mc-Carthy more as a diversion than as a serious threat.

They believe his challenge is being made from a narrow insecure base on the party's extreme left, a position to which his reliance on the Vietnam issue is forcing him.

In general, however, the administration takes no comfort from McCarthy's plans to run in at least five primaries. This is forcing the White House and the Democratic National Committee into retaliatory action six or seven months earlier than planned.

"At a time when the party should be running at the peak of efficiency," one Democratic leader said Thursday, "the McCarthy business is causing a diversion of party people and party activity, in the primary states and elsewhere, for this within-family quarrel."

Although strategy is still being prepared, Johnson is being advised to use himself as sparingly as possible in countering McCarthy during the March-to-June primary season. He would rely instead, on his cabinet and State Democratic organizations.

"I can't envision the President of the United States running around the primary states throughout the spring," a high administration source said.

Johnson may make a single, largely nonpolitical appearance at an opportune time in Wisconsin, Nebraska and Oregon, where he cannot keep his name off the ballot.

Biochemists Synthesize DNA; Major Step in Creation of Life

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Biochemists said Thursday they had synthesized an active virus—in a major step that could lead to creation of life itself.

Dr. Arthur Kornberg, head of Stanford University's department of biochemistry, and Dr. Mehran Goulian, former Stanford postdoctoral fellow now at the University of Chicago, said they had produced in a test tube for the first time a fully active DNA virus.

Dr. Kornberg called the man-made virus biologically active, meaning that it can produce certain specific reactions—but he would not say that it is living matter.

In Washington, Dr. James A. Shannon, director of the National Institutes of Health, which has been the key financial supporter of Kornberg's work, said the achievement "unquestionably will stand as one of the great landmarks of research in the life sciences."

He said the new development has great potential to help solve a number of difficult and pressing national health problems, particularly certain forms of cancer that may be caused by viruses, and possibly diseases of genetic origin.

A virus is a protein bag containing a coiled thread or threads of nucleic acids, the essence of life. Viruses cause numerous diseases in men, plants and animals, but many others do not.

DNA—deoxyribonucleic acid—is the basic hereditary material found in every living cell. When, in feeding, a cell absorbs a virus containing DNA, the viral nucleic acids can take control of the cell's own DNA, which then starts producing more viruses instead of taking care of its cell functions. Sometimes it makes so many viruses that it bursts.

The Stanford team used as a template or pattern the single-thread DNA of a dwarf virus, PHI X 174, that infects and destroys a type of bacteria called E. coli in the human intestinal tract. Neither the virus nor the microbe is known to cause disease.

Dr. Robert L. Sinsheimer of Cal Tech discovered PHI X in 1959, the same year Dr. Kornberg won a Nobel Prize for making DNA in a test tube out of a mixture of inert chemicals. Drs. Goulian and Kornberg, reporting in the December issue of "Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences," explain that they prepared a test-tube copy of PHI X DNA from a fully active virus.

They used sophisticated laboratory techniques to separate the synthetic material from the original DNA. Then they used the synthetic DNA for further rounds of replication, or continuing cycles of independent existence.

The scientists froze samples of each succeeding version of synthetic DNA and shipped them to Dr. Sinsheimer at Pasadena. Dr. Sinsheimer tested the samples' ability to replicate the complete viruses. And they did replicate, producing fully active synthetic DNA viruses exactly like the original, which were capable of invading other bacteria, Sinsheimer said.

GOP To Answer LBJ Attack

(c) N.Y. Times News Service NEW YORK—All three television networks have granted one half-hour of equal time Friday night at 7 o'clock to Republican leaders to answer President Johnson's attack on the party's members in Congress Tuesday night in Bal Harbour, Fla.

The Republican response will be made by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan. The program will originate from the Washington studios of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The President's attack on Republicans in Congress came in a speech he delivered on national television before the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Legislators Propose Jumping Sales Tax One Per Cent

HARRISBURG (AP) — A $156 million package pegged to a 1 per cent increase in the 5 per cent sales tax through the next 18 months emerged Thursday as the latest plan to end the state's half-year financial impasse.

The proposal to jump the sales tax to 6 per cent until July 1, 1969, was submitted to the House floor late Thursday evening. It replaced a plan to extend the sales tax to trade-in values.

"We're as good as we've ever been or ever will be," House Speaker Kenneth B. Lee, R-Sullivan, said after the proposal was placed in position for a final vote.

Minority Democrats immediately caucused on the package but made no commitment, according to floor leader Herbert Fineman, D-Philadelphia.

"We're going to take it up in the morning," he said.

The 1 per cent boost in the sales tax, at $56.2 million for the remainder of the fiscal year, was the biggest money raiser in the package.

The entire plan was drafted by Republicans in an attempt to resolve the Shafer Administration's total fiscal dilemma, rather than accept a partial settlement drafted two weeks ago by the leaderships of both sides.

The new package included five measures contained in the $104 million leadership compromise and revived three previously unacceptable proposals to replace proposed levies on trade-ins and tobacco products other than cigarettes.

The measures brought out again for another look were:

- A 25 per cent increase on bank shares, $8 million.
- A 50 per cent increase on the beer tax, $4.9 million.
- A 1 cent tax on soda, $11 million.

Measures retained from the $104 million agreement were:

- An increase from 5 to 6 mills of the capital stock tax, $25.5 million.
- An increase in the utilities gross receipts tax from 14 to 20 mills, $18.8 million.
- Tripling the inheritance tax from 2 to 6 per cent, $13 million.
- Elimination of the 50-cent sales tax exemption on restaurant meals, $7.5 million. (An additional $1.5 million would be netted from the jump in the tax from 5 to 6 per cent.)
- Transfer of the surplus in the expired Korean veterans' bonus fund, $6.7 million.
- A jump from 15 to 18 per cent in the liquor tax, $419 million.

Majority Leader Lee A. Donaldson, said his caucus overwhelmingly supported the $156 million plan.

Social Security Bill Slipped Through Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., caught critics of the new Social Security bill off guard Thursday and cleared the way for final action on the measure at 11 a.m. Friday.

All threats of a filibuster against the bill's tightened welfare provisions were removed when Long executed a maneuver that dismayed Democratic majority leader, Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, likened to "a flash of lightning."

What happened was this: Shortly after the senate convened at 9 a.m., with only about a dozen members on the floor, Long suddenly moved for and won final passage of the House-passed compromise bill on a voice vote.

Mansfield, who had been called out of the chamber, came back protesting that the rights of individual senators had been overridden.

"When the leader is called out on official business, he ought to be given some consideration," Mansfield snapped.

"I was unavoidably absent when, like a flash of lightning," the bill was passed, he said.

At first Long objected, saying he had learned that "if you have a filibuster on your hands, you better break it when you can."

He had been put on notice, Long said, that "some senators did not intend to permit us to vote on the conference report in this session." And he said this would mean that "we would have to go back and tell those fine old people, 824 million of them—that they will have to go without Social Security increases."

Finally Long consented to have the passage of the bill rescinded under an agreement calling for a second vote at 11 a.m. Friday.

This means that debate on the measure must stop then, eliminating any chance of delaying action by extended talk.

The House approved the bill Wednesday by a vote of 388 to 3. The measure would increase Social Security benefits by at least 13 per cent, starting next March 3. The minimum payment would go up from $44 a month to $53, and the maximum would go from $142 to $160.50.

To pay for the higher benefits, Social Security taxes would be increased, by a maximum of $2.80 a year for those earning more than $6,600. Employers would pay the same tax increases.

Some Democratic senators, including Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma and Robert F. Kennedy of New York, objected to strict welfare provisions written into the bill by the House.

They predicted more trouble in the cities next year unless the provisions relating to children in families with absent fathers were relaxed.

Neither Kennedy nor Harris was on the floor when Long made his "lightning" move.

Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., said he was supposed to be acting as their floor sentinel, and he took the blame for permitting the bill to pass.

"At times, one learns the hard way," Tydings remarked later.

He said he was standing at the rear of the chamber when Long moved for approval of the bill, but he thought the Louisiana senator was talking about something else.

"It took 30 seconds for the conference report to move through," Tydings said, adding that he would have blocked it if he had realized what was going on.

Under the measure, a seven-member weather modification board would be created in the state Agriculture Department. Before granting a cloud-seeding license, the board would require a $50,000 bond to cover any possible damage.

The House, on a vote of 190-8, agreed to accept Senate amendments to the measure and sent it to Gov. Shafer for signature.

The bill was sponsored by Rep. William O. Shuman, D-Franklin, who had proposed a measure in 1965 that would have placed a two-year moratorium on rainmaking, except in government research.

The 1965 proposal was vetoed by then-Gov. William W. Scranton.

Shuman and other supporters of the legislation charged that rainmakers sometimes cause droughts by making rain fall in one area, thereby depriving other areas of moisture.

Tampering with the elements is outlawed only in counties whose commissioners adopt a resolution. Franklin, Adams, Fulton and Bedford counties in south-central Pennsylvania have such resolutions.

Admits Setting Fatal Fraternity House Fire

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A University of Pennsylvania sophomore admitted Thursday starting a fraternity house fire that killed three persons while engaged in horseplay with one of the victims, according to Dist. Atty. Arlen Specter.

The attorney for the accused, Richard J. Noble, 20, of Orlino, Ohio, said his client had admitted starting the fire after drinking 15 to 20 glasses of champagne at a fraternity party and after drinking earlier at a Country Club.

Noble was arrested on murder and arson charges Thursday as he walked with his attorney, Bernard L. Segal, toward city hall where he planned to surrender.

Dist. Atty. Arlen Specter said Noble told him the fire started while he was engaged in horseplay with Kent D. Smith, 20, of Wilmington, Del., who later died of smoke inhalation.

Specter said Noble made a full oral statement. He described Noble as "very remorseful and very sorry over the situation."

Accident Results In $100 Damage

A two-car traffic accident at the intersection of Second ave. and East st., resulted in $100 damage to one of the auto mobiles Thursday. There were no injuries.

The mishap, investigated by Officer Edward Lindberg, borough police, involved Donna Marie Bargerstock, 20, 264 Buchanan st., and Carl R. Eastman, 31, 819 East st. The Bargerstock vehicle suffered $100 damage.

Police said Miss Bargerstock was traveling north on East when struck by Eastman. Eastman, police explained had stopped for the stop sign at Second, then proceeded through the intersection, attempting to make a left turn.

House Plans To License Rainmakers

HARRISBURG (AP) — The House took final action Thursday on a bill to create an agency to license rainmakers and control their activities.

Under the measure, a seven-member weather modification board would be created in the state Agriculture Department. Before granting a cloud-seeding license, the board would require a $50,000 bond to cover any possible damage.

The House, on a vote of 190-8, agreed to accept Senate amendments to the measure and sent it to Gov. Shafer for signature.

The bill was sponsored by Rep. William O. Shuman, D-Franklin, who had proposed a measure in 1965 that would have placed a two-year moratorium on rainmaking, except in government research.

Nixon's Entering Primaries Evokes Some Skepticism

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Recent indications that former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, may enter several presidential primaries in so-called favorite son states provoked surprise and skepticism in some Republican circles Thursday.

"We don't think he'll do it," remarked a spokesman for Ohio's Gov. James Rhodes, who is expected to run as a favorite son in his state's May 7 primary. "In fact, we think we have a specific commitment from him to stay out of the Ohio primary, and we have not heard anything to the contrary from Mr. Nixon himself."

Jack Conmy, press aide to Pennsylvania's Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, said: "We would bristle at this. If Mr. Shafer runs as a favorite son, it would be to keep the delegation together. We don't want anyone tampering with the governor's prerogative."

Shafer is expected to run as a favorite son in his state's primary April 23.

The possibility that Nixon might enter his name in favorite-son primaries emerged on Tuesday, when high sources in the Nixon campaign organization told newsmen here that they had definitely ruled out such a strategy and were, in fact, taking a "new look" at all 15 primary states.

Such an approach if adopted, could conceivably double the number of primaries now on the Nixon schedule. Although he has not formally announced his intention to become a candidate the former vice president has been saying that if he runs for the nomination, he will enter the four key primaries in New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Oregon and probably those in Indiana and South Dakota.

If he also enters primaries in favorite-son states, seven more would be added to the list, in chronological order, they are Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Ohio, Florida, California, New Jersey and Illinois. However, sources close to Nixon have said that the chances of Nixon's running in California and Massachusetts are small.

Gov. Claude Kirk of Florida would not comment on the possibility of a Nixon entry into his state's May 28 primary. Aides to Sen. Clifford Case, of New Jersey, said the senator had "no comment" in response to several inquiries.

Youngsville Telephone Service Rates Reduced

Approximately 115 customers of Youngsville's telephone exchange will receive reduced service rates totaling $6,453 a year through the extension of the base rate area, according to Bob Dilks of Bell Telephone Company's Warren office.

Dilks said the reductions result from the elimination of mileage charges for those customers now inside the extended boundary for the Youngsville exchange, and a substantial reduction of mileage costs for others.

The Youngsville boundary, Dilks said, has been extended to include Pittsfield and Irvine in the base rate area.

Dilks' statements followed a news report Thursday that the Public Utility Commission has authorized Bell Telephone Co. to reduce rates $36,340 for customers in seven Western Pennsylvania exchanges, including Youngsville in Warren County.

local calling area. The reduction in rates is only of basic service charges."

The reductions became effective for Youngsville customers on Dec. 28.

Shafer Defends Fight for More Tax Revenues

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Shafer defended his administration's fight for additional tax revenues Thursday night as a fight for all Pennsylvanians.

"It is a fight for better jobs, better education, better homes, better air and water, better cities and farms, better health, better human relations, better treatment of those in need of help," the governor said.

His remarks were contained in a speech prepared for the Lancaster County Shrine Club dinner in the nearby community of Vintage.

"Once the smoke and fire of the tax battle is gone, Pennsylvanians, I am certain, will see a new Pennsylvania rising from the programs we have defended and fought so hard for; and all of us will be glad we stood fast."

Shafer said he was concerned that the tax battle that has been perpetuated in the legislature since June has obscured the accomplishments of his administration.

He pointed to a state unemployment rate below the national average and road construction of $420 million, double the amount spent in 1965.

Bell Telephone has been studying all area exchanges for the past three years in an effort to broaden base areas and reduce the number of customers on multi-party lines.

Dilks assured that there has been no change in the calling area. "For example," he explained, "Warren customers can call Youngsville free of charge. It is what we call the

Bruce Manley In Line For Patronage Job

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — It was learned in Jamestown, Thursday afternoon that former Chautauque County Assemblyman A. Bruce Manley of Fredonia is in line for a $26,890 per year patronage job from the New York state tax commission.

Manley had earlier been reported to be the top candidate for an appointment to an $18,000 a year post with the New York State Thruway Authority. According to authoritative sources, the thruway post will now go to a Republican appointee from Erie County.

Mr. Manley, former minority GOP whip in the state assembly who participated in the collection and distribution of the state sales tax if he receives the appointment.

First elected to the state legislature in 1956, Mr. Manley stepped down last year in favor of Jamestown assemblyman Jess J. Present, chairman of the Chautauque County Republican committee, when reapportionment changed the boundary line in the assembly district.

Police Here Are Alerted

All Warren area police agencies yesterday morning were on the receiving end of an interstate general alarm after a New York State trooper was shot and killed near Pulaski, N. Y.

Police radios and teletypes relayed the information that a car, stolen from Griffin Air Force Base at Rome, N. Y., was stopped by the trooper when the killing occurred.

The stolen vehicle is a 1965 Dodge, two-door, dark blue in color and carrying Minnesota registration SN 2156, or a Michigan license (same number).

The two occupants in the stolen car were described only as young, white males, one wearing a bulky sweater. They are armed and considered dangerous.

Road blocks were ordered particularly in Watertown, N. Y., north of Rome.

Escapes Hurts

In Area Mishap

A 55-year-old Ashville, M. Y. man escaped injury Wednesday night in a one-car accident on Route 59, one mile west of Kinzua Dam.

Damage was listed at $400. A 19-year-old RD 2, Sugar Grove woman was treated at Warren General Hospital for torn rib ligaments, brush burns and bruises after her car struck a parked car at 1 a. m. Wednesday on Route 957, one and a half miles south of Sugar Grove.

State police reported that a car driven by Nancy Irene Hale, RD 2, Sugar Grove, went off the berm and out of control, skidded across the highway and struck a parked vehicle owned by Jack A. Nicholas, of RD 3, Sugar Grove.

River Encroachment

The control of the Allegheny River by the Kinzua Dam as it was demonstrated this past summer may have created a false confidence that will be a matter of concern at some time in the future. A flood that ravished the upriver city of Salamanca was passed through Warren without ever bringing the river up to a really threatening level.

Flood plains that would have stood three or four feet deep in muddy water before the dam was in operation remained dry and well above the level of the rushing water. Thus giving the impression that this formerly useless land could now be used for both residential and industrial purposes.

This is far from being a fact. For while the "Salamanca" flood came close to being a flood of record, it wasn't. And it came along at a time when the dam was being drawn down to accommodate some "in dam" construction work. Otherwise, dam officials may have found it impossible to contain the tremendous inflow and conditions downstream from the dam would have been far different than they were.

As far back as 1961, engineers were warning that once the dam was in operation there would be a tendency for land use to move in on the flood plains. And they predicted that this infringement would gain momentum once a threatening flood had been held within bounds. They also predicted that if such land use of the flood plains went unchecked it would eventually be responsible for huge property losses.

While pointing out that the Kinzua Dam was designed to contain any flood of record and release the water downstream without flooding, they also pointed out that absolute control of flood threats would depend on the frequency of such threats and the amount of water impounded in the dam at the time. They said that for this reason all use of the lower flood plains below the dam should be closely controlled.

At that time we didn't have any county agency that could regulate or enforce controlling measures. Since that time the Warren County Planning and Zoning office has been established and is in a position to prevent encroachment on flood plain lands. If the needed regulations are not a part of the county's master plan, they should be. The allowable uses of flood plain lands should be limited to agriculture, recreation, wildlife sanctuaries, forestry, utility right-of-ways, and parts of residential lots on which no buildings are constructed.

However, we can't expect the planning office to shoulder all of the responsibility for keeping the flood plains free of encroachment. We must rely heavily on the alertness and persistence of interested citizen's groups.

JIM BISHOP He's Gonna Give You Cancer

The two couples stood on the first tee and there was a scented breeze from the Gulf Stream and stirred the palm trees to complain. The ladies put on their front smiles, studying each other with self-deprecation while the men tossed grass in the air and talked of making the game interesting with a ten-dollar Nassau.

They were strangers, but they moved down the fairway in carts that darted like flirting water-bugs. Wilmer was old and his irons were short, but he had authoritative control of a bad slice. His Gracey was plump enough to be fat. She puffed and blew the hair out of her face and hit the top of the ball and kept muttering: "Oh, God."

Bill was young and tall, but his conversation was vague and he shanked a four wood. His wife was a Raggedy Ann, with black bangs and loose culottes and a smile that remained plastered on her kisser no matter what the disaster. Wilmer was happy about his Nassau. The old man knew that he could beat his man without resorting to five-foot gimmes.

The foursome ahead was slow. They hit by committee. This gave the couples time to become acquainted. Gracey talked about children, hair, bargains and her man. Wilmer told Bill that he was seventy-five, retired for thirty years. "I made my money analyzing other men. Strengths and weaknesses," he said. "You can make money from a thief, if you know he's a thief."

Bill was polite. His dark eyes masked an old wound. His body was on the golf course, but his mind was somewhere else. Now and then he tossed a crouton of information into the thin soup of chatter. "I'm a doctor," he said. "You know Tonawanda, New York? Well, anyway, near there."

Old Wilmer's game improved. Beating Bill made him more confident. "You're a young fellow," he said, "but you don't know how to concentrate. You swing like you're in a phone booth somewhere." The young man looked sheepish. "You're right," he said. He scored one par, and double-bogied every thing else.

At the turn, Bill said he wanted to double the bet. "Why?" said Wilmer. "I'm into you thirty dollars." Bill said Wilmer was right. The old man changed his mind. "Double it," he said. "It will force you to concentrate. You gotta get out of that operating room." Bill hit a fair shot. "If I'm lucky," he said softly, "I'll get into an operating room. If not, I'm through." Wilmer hit his ball and forgot to control his slice. It skipped on a lake. "What do you mean," the old man said, "if you're lucky..." Bill shook his head and went off in the cart.

Wilmer hit his third shot into a trap. "Put in for additional insurance," Bill said. He tapped the hollow under his right shoulder. "They found a cancer," Bill chirped up four feet from the flag. Wilmer was stunned. "A what?" he said. Bill looked the old man in the eye. "It happens," he said, "even to doctors. I had some radium treatments and brought the missus down here for one good vacation."

The old man's face looked gray. "Four hundred and seventy reagents in the back ten times," Bill said. "The sin absorbs a hundred, so I've had three thousand seven hundred in the right lung. Now the doctors have to evaluate all the findings."

"Cancer-cer?" Wilmer breathed. "Cancer-cer?" He hit a pitching wedge and skulled it. "Sorry," Bill said. "I shouldn't be talking about myself." The old man was breathing hard through his mouth. "What are your chances, Doc?" "Not too good," Bill said, almost shyly. "If it hasn't metastasized—well, you know. It's high in the right quadrant, near the bronchial tubes. I did a little research. The average life span is seven months. I used two of them already. We'll know better when we get home."

The old one gasped. He was playing golf with a dead man. The breeze freshened and shook hands with the hibiscus. Bill kept his mind on his game. Wilmer couldn't buy a shot. His hands trembled.

The sun was gone when Bill and his wife got into their car. He put the car in gear. In the gloom of the dashboard lights he dropped $55 into his wife's lap. She shook her Raggedy Ann head. "One of these days," she said, "God is going to punish you. He's really gonna give you cancer." ...

PEARSON & ANDERSON Pinpointed by Smuggling

WASHINGTON—How badly the Organization of American States needs an overhaul was indicated by a whiskey-smuggling deal which took place just before the historic Summit Conference of Pan-American presidents.

When President Johnson flew to Uruguay for the meeting, the OAS also flew 150 staff members down to help handle the meeting. Since only 20 presidents were conferring, the dispatch of 150 staff members seemed unnecessary; and when they arrived, they found themselves with almost nothing to do.

However, before the OAS staff left Kennedy Airport, each was instructed to buy three bottles of scotch at the tax-free airport liquor store. It was explained that when they got to Uruguay the OAS would give a reception and the Scotch was needed for that purpose.

Four hundred and fifty bottles of scotch, therefore, were taken into Uruguay duty free. However, the cocktail party was never held. Presumably the 450 bottles of Scotch were sold on the black market. Who got the profit remains a mystery.

The incident highlights the corruption now being revealed in the Organization of American States. It has long been riddled with both bureaucracy and graft. Its staff has risen to 1,057 members, permanent or on contract, most of them drawing tax-free salaries, two-thirds paid by the United States. The much-criticized "Colossus of the North" pays 66 per cent of the OAS upkeep but has little to say about its administration.

This week the OAS suspended Julio E. Banzas, director of the Argentine office, for the "apparent misuse" of 30 million pesos for the Alliance for Progress. It also transferred Jose Salinas, the director of the Costa Rican office, for "incurring a series of overdrafts."

Meanwhile, some Latin American diplomats have been blasting the State Department because it has backed ex-President Galo Plaza Lasso of Ecuador to be Secretary-General. Galo Plaza comes from the country which has been the bitterest Pan-American critic of the United States and which kicked out our ambassador last October. Despite this, the State Department had picked Galo Plaza as the most experienced, as a result of his long experience for the United Nations in Cyprus, the Congo, and Lebanon.

The Post Office Department has won the first round in a suit brought against its Christmas stamp because the stamp features a "missal" or Catholic worship book.

The suit was brought by Americans United for Separation of Church and State on the ground that the Christmas stamp was actually a "Roman Catholic depiction."

U.S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff, a Jew acting as an intermediary between Protestants and Catholics, ruled in favor of Catholic Postmaster General Larry O'Brien. The Protestant organization is now appealing. In 1955 the same Americans United for Separation of Church and State protested against a stamp memorializing the Salvation Army, which is Protestant.

"Honest John" Stennis, the deep-voiced Senator from Mississippi, has been busy explaining to Senate colleagues that he's not investigating their income taxes. Some Senators were perturbed when they read in the Federal Register that the White House had given the Senate Ethics Committee, under Sen. Stennis, authority to inspect tax returns. They wondered what their colleague from Mississippi was up to.

Stennis has been explaining that all he wanted was the right to examine returns of Sen. Ed Long of Missouri, whose law practice is under investigation.

He was furious when his request to examine Long's returns was published in the Federal Register. Senators, however, were even more furious—until they received Stennis's apology.

President Johnson is now pinning his most important hopes for peace on U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker in Saigon. Without any fanfare, Bunker has been working with new South Vietnamese leaders to explore peace possibilities.

What Bunker is banking on is the fact that almost every South Vietnamese leader has relatives in the North. Vice President Ky came from the North originally. So did many other of the South Vietnamese leaders. They fled south after the French departed. Thus they probably have a better chance of opening up peace talks than any diplomat at the U.N., Paris, Warsaw, or Washington.

Ambassador Bunker has made a deeper impression on President Johnson than any previous diplomat in Southeast Asia. He is resourceful, reliable, inspires confidence. He is not kept on short leash by the State Department, but given the widest latitude.

Former head of a sugar refinery, Bunker was brought into diplomacy late in life by his old classmate, Dean Acheson, then Secretary of State. Bunker first filled the difficult job of U.S. ambassador to Argentina when Dictator Peron was causing trouble; went on to India, another trouble spot; then to turbulent Indonesia; then was given the tough assignment of bringing order to the revolt-torn Dominican Republic.

At the age of 73 he married Carol Laise, the U.S. ambassador to Nepal. "It was my hardest diplomatic negotiation," Bunker told this column.

Off To The Races

HARRISBURG—Columnist's Notebook: OFF TO THE RACES—When Governor Shafer this week signed legislation authorizing flat-track racing in Pennsylvania, no great hiding-in-the-closet emotional struggle was involved on the part of His Excellency over whether he should or should not approve the bill, as some observers earlier had projected.

"Ridiculous," snapped one gubernatorial aide. "The Governor had made his position clear long before the bill ever gained legislative clearance, more specifically that he would indeed sign such legislation if it came to him in proper form."

This is precisely what happened, as those close to the scene knew it would. It was never a question of supporting this type of legislation on the part of His Excellency. He long ago made it clear he would not advocate flat-racing and by the same token he would not oppose it if the Legislature deemed it advisable to send such a bill to him.

Actually, had there been any great soul-searching involved, he could have ignored the bill and permitted it to become law without his signature, as has happened oftentimes in the past. Mr. Shafer however didn't even choose this tack, saying instead as he penned his signature: "I have signed into law (the bill) as I said I would if the bill reached me in proper form from the General Assembly."

CONVENTION BIPARTISANSHIP ET AL—A number of delegates to Pennsylvania's Constitutional Convention are becoming decidedly irked by the almost constant prattle over the convention ultimately turning into one big partisan hassle, professed and projected by some of the big city political pros and some observers.

Growled one lawyer-delegate: "We're not perfect, we don't pretend to be but by jove we've set up the convention on about as bipartisan basis as possible, even down to the co-chairing of committees. Certainly we'll have squabbles—what group of two or more people doesn't ultimately wind up in a squabble—but we've done everything possible from a basic point of view to keep partisanship to a minimum. What more could be done? It's a bit iring to hear these 'theorists' already busy projecting partisanship fights in apparent grim determination!"

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?—A legislative task force studying Pennsylvania's point system for suspension of drivers' licenses on Motor Code violations has come up with some interesting motoring facts of life as they exist at the moment.

For example, did you know that there actually is a maximum speed limit for driving over a railroad crossing on a highway? We didn't—and apparently at least eight other motorists within the confines of the Keystone State didn't either during 1966!

It seems that during that year eight motorists were charged with speeding across a railroad crossing—the speed limit being 20 miles per hour within 200 feet of said crossing. Well then here's one for the riddle-people: What do you do when you're traveling along a four-lane limited access highway with a posted "minimum" speed of 40 miles per hour and you come to a railroad crossing, as is the case on U.S. 322 on the Lewistown By-pass? (If you're nailed for speeding over a railroad crossing, you've picked up three points.)

THE "STOP" SIGN BRIGADE—Here's another "point system" tid-bit: Ever sneak through a STOP sign without being picked up? If so, you're more fortunate than some 33,000 other Pennsylvanians who weren't so fortunate that year. That's how many were nailed for a STOP sign violation—and when you're picked up on this count, it's going to cost you five points.

The Women Handymen

A Montpelier, Vt. housewife repaired split siding on her house with weather resistant glue. A Jersey City, N. J. woman successfully substituted pancake mix for plaster to fill nail holes in a wall before the wall was painted. A St. Paul housewife retrieved her tarnished Christmas decorations, then coated them with clear nail polish to add lustre and prevent retarnishing.

America's housewives are tackling repair jobs in homes today on a scale most of us don't even suspect. In response to the growing scarcity of repair service and its soaring cost. The above are illustrations volunteered by 1,000 homemakers recently surveyed by Devcon, leading producer of repair materials. Among the revealing findings:

+ Nearly half of all repairs in households with family incomes between $7,500 and $15,000 are done by women. The women enjoy repairing furniture and small, uncomplicated jobs.

+ A full 74 per cent of the housewives feel small repairs are in their domain. Only plumbing, electrical and carpentry repairs are generally considered the domain of the husband.

+ Out of every 10 women, seven at least attempt the repair job before deciding it's "too much" and calling in a professional.

+ The favorite excuse of the husband, used by 67 per cent, for avoiding a wife's request to repair something is lack of time. Another 22 per cent say they don't know how.

+ Believing that home repairs are increasingly their responsibility, today's housewives want the next generation to be better prepared to cope. A whopping 90 per cent think a do-it-yourself course should be taught in school to young women and 70 per cent encourage their children to help in repairs.

This is not just another story about the modern woman's invasion of fields traditionally reserved for the male. This is a report about the economics of home repairs and it applies to every household. Labor costs in this area have been climbing an average of 5 per cent each year during the past 10 years and there are no signs whatsoever of a reversal. A single home visit by a repairman can pulverize a rigidly organized budget. On top of this is the difficulty of finding a repairman and luring him to the house for a minor repair. When the serviceman is reluctant to give his time for an insignificant job and the husband is conveniently "absent," the housewife is virtually compelled to attempt the repair herself or junk the product.

"Americans junk about $18 billion worth of appliances, tools, toys, furniture and other equipment annually, which could be salvaged," estimates Albert Creighton, president of Devcon. "Go to a junkyard, as I do, and see what is discarded. Toys are at the top of the list. A wheel comes off, a gun stock splits and out it goes when a few drops of glue could repair the damage. Lawnmowers, steel and wooden furniture, toasters and lamps are discarded for similar minor flaws."

In view of the immense stakes in money and time involved, guides on handling repairs can be of major value to any economy-minded housewife. Here are Creighton's basic ones:

(1) When an item is damaged, repair it immediately. Delay will, if anything, make the repair more costly or encourage you to throw the article away and lose the entire investment.

(2) Give your house an annual checkup so you can anticipate trouble and slash repair costs. Winter can cause subtle damage to a house. You should periodically check your gutters, window sills, drains, etc., to find damage before it becomes extensive.

(3) Hold off on calling a repairman until you have tried the repair yourself. "Take a leaking boiler or radiator," says Creighton. "Nine times out of 10 they can be repaired with the right sealer, which you can buy in any hardware store. If the housewife finds she cannot do it, then she can give up and blow $30 on the plumber."

(4) Take advantage of the knowledge of any experienced owner of a hardware store; he is selling service as well as products. Let him help you to train yourself to handle minor repairs and thereby to save substantial sums on repair bills each year.

Rocky's Inaugural Address

(c) N. Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON—Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York has published in the January issue of Foreign Affairs a philosophical analysis of America and the world, which tells us something about his mind and spirit and may even indicate something about his political intentions.

The governor has said publicly that he doesn't "want to be president," so it is possible that he is merely practicing his penmanship in preparation for a life of private meditation and literary endeavor.

And then again he may have wished to begin the new year with a public reminder that the governor of New York has thoughts and ideas which go beyond the boundaries of the Empire State and even encompass occasionally the larger problems of the nation, the continents, the generations and even the presidency.

On the assumption that he is thinking solely about a writing career, this article in Foreign Affairs suggests that he has a promising but limited future. He is not snappy enough for LIFE, Look or Esquire, but the tone is just right for Bob Manning at the Atlantic or Willie Morris at Harpers. The question is whether he would find a life of lonely scribbling very exciting.

On the other assumption, that he is thinking about continuing his political career in another place, the shape and spirit of this article is more promising. In fact, his observations on "policy and the people" are almost a model of presidential or Wilsonian prose, not tomention being good politics. In the first place, he has written 3,000 words without ever using the word Vietnam. This sets him apart at once from all other writers and politicians in the land. He shows a sympathetic concern for our restless and rebellious young. He says, in effect, that we have lost our way and don't know where we're going, but he doesn't mention President Johnson. He says "nostalgia for a simpler age will not help matters," but doesn't mention Barry Goldwater. He is sad about the past, troubled about the present, and hopeful about the future, and he grieves above all, as every wise candidate must, on the plight of the noble but isolated voter.

"What is at issue," he says, "is nothing less than whether life can be given meaning—as I deeply believe it can—in an environment which sometimes seems to dwarf the individual. The contemporary uneasiness, especially of our young generation, reflects rebellion against the emptiness of a life which knows only 'practical' problems and material goods and seems to lack a deeper purpose."

Embarrassing Situation

I never thought I'd live to see the day when federal agencies could be too darn cooperative, but I have. Both the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife) and the Army Corps of Engineers have responded to a problem with such speed that I find myself placed in a highly embarrassing position.

It all started when I became concerned about a locked gate that had been placed across the access road to the tailwaters of the Kinzua Dam on the Hemlock side of the river. This area had established itself as one of the finest fishing spots in the Tri-state area, had been the subject of five national magazine articles and was attracting fishermen and their families from both local and distant points to such an extent that it was considered as the best tourist attraction in the Kinzua Dam complex.

I considered unrestricted access to this unique fishing area as absolutely essential to the overall promotion of the tourist-based economy we are trying to hard to establish in Warren County. So I wrote a letter to R.E. Griffith, director of the Fish and Wildlife Service in the Boston office pointing out the problem that had developed because the gate had been locked.

Shortly after this letter reached Boston, Don Reese of that office called me. He explained that the reason the gate was locked was that the new roadway recently constructed hadn't as yet been accepted by his agency and the contractor had locked the gate to protect the installation. He said, however, that inspection of the road would be expedited and then the lock would come off.

Truthfully, I didn't expect this to happen too soon. So when Joe Boccardy, assistant district supervisor, came to Warren last Tuesday and gave me a call at home, I asked if we could get together for an hour or so. Joe agreed and we met.

I explained the situation to Joe and he promised to take the matter up the minute he got back to Boston.

On Wednesday, though, things began to happen. Jack Ewers, manager at the Kinzua Dam, called to tell me that the inspection had been completed and the road accepted by the Fish and Wildlife Service. But, Jack said, he wanted me to come up and look things over before he opened the gate.

So I went up yesterday. It didn't take much looking around to determine why he wanted me to be aware of the fact that just opening the gate wasn't the main problem.

Heavy rains of the past week and thawing weather has started the newly-cut bank above the road to slide and I am certain that these slides constitute a dangerous situation. Tons of mixed rock and mud could sweep across the road at any time. And to make matters worse, the parking lot is close to ankle deep in sandy muck, the kind of goop that could keep a car mired-in for a week.

Right then and there I was willing to withdraw the request that the gate be opened. But when I got back to the pylon building at the dam, the Pittsburgh office of the Corps was already on the radio saying that a call from Boston requested the gate be unlocked. Evidently Boccardy had reached the home office.

So the lock was to come off this morning—and is my face red? I've got to admit that this is one time I stuck my neck out and got it chopped good and proper. But things won't turn out so bad if the fishermen don't chance using the road and parking lot until a good freeze makes conditions a lot safer than they are right now.

And remember that when the thaw starts to hit next spring things are going to be as bad or worse than they are now. At least until the condition caused by the slides is corrected.

DRAGON CAGERS AT MC DOWELL

Only Sheffield at Home On County Slate Tonite

Tonight starts the final heavy winter sports weekend for Warren County high school teams until after the Christmas holidays, with four basketball games and a two-day wrestling tournament on tap.

Warren's cagers take to the road, playing at McDowell tonight and at Slippery Rock tomorrow evening. Sheffield is the only home-standing club in the county, as the Wolverines host East Forest. The Youngsville basketball team is at Titusville, and Tidoute swings back into action after a two-week lay-off, traveling to Jamestown, Pa.

Eisenhower's wrestling team will be at Randolph, N.Y. today and tomorrow for a pre-holiday mat tournament.

The Knight cagers are idle until next Friday, when they play their alumni. Youngsville's grapplers travel to Smithport on Monday and the Warren mat team, who met Erie East last night, host Erie Strong Vincent next Thursday.

The Dragon cagers will look to their three high scorers, Dan Krumm, Dan O'Neill and Randy Jones, for a winning effort at McDowell. The trio has averaged a total of 32 points a game. With height in mind, Coach Joe Shantz will have Mike Hackett and sophomore Ed O'Neill in the lineup to make up the balance of the starting five for the Dragons.

McDowell should be ready for Warren after dumping Titusville Tuesday 80-34. The Rockets had downed McDowell in their first meeting 83-76, but Trojan Mike Tintman was able to hold high-scoring Jim Romaniszyn to 13 points in the rematch.

Hank Hudson is the leading scorer for the Trojans, with a four-game average of 18 points. Hudson's big game was the loss to Titusville, when he scored 24 points.

Warren will go into the contest with a 1-2 record, their only win being the opener against Youngsville. McDowell's slate reads 2-1, with their only loss being the opening game against Titusville.

Conneaut Valley were the other two victories for the Trojans as they played them back-to-back.

Youngsville will make no changes in its lineup as they meet the Rockets for the second time this season. Coach Paul Siegel's high scorer so far has been Denny Walton, Walton has been sinking an average of 16 points a game.

Other Eagles slated to make the starting lineup will be George Nelson, Tom Burtleigh, Gary Wood and Jack Maze. The Eagles will be going into the contest with a 3-3 record.

The Rockets faced their first defeat last week at the hands of McDowell.

In their first meeting the Eagles were defeated by the Rockets 86-55, but the story could prove different tonight as the Red and White travel to Titusville to settle the matter.

Tidoute pins its hopes on Ed Ziegler and Ed Vincent in their second meeting with the Jamestown Muskies. Ziegler poured in 17 points in the first contest and Vincent sunk 15.

Also in double figures in their last meeting with the Muskies were Scott McKay with 12 and Mark Rondinelli with ten. Both boys should see action in tonight's contest. The other opening spot will be a toss-up between Ron Carr and Fritz Anderson.

The man to watch on the Purple and Gold squad will be Dennis Williams. Williams compiled 24 points in the first meeting with the Bulldogs.

In that game, the Bulldogs were defeated by the Muskies, 85-58. The Muskies dominated every quarter but the third, when the Bulldogs outscored them by one basket.

The Orange and Black will be looking for their first win of the season tonight. Sheffield, the only team in the county still undefeated, will be looking for a tough game with the East Forest Bears. The Wolverines and Bears exchanged victories last year, with each team winning by ten points on their home court.

Coach Nick Creola will start Wayne Swanson at the forward spot. Swanson has totaled 87 points in three games for an average of 29 points a game. Also starting for the Wolverines will be Robbie Hart and Jeff Scalise. Hart and Scalise have a 58 point average between themselves. Filling in at the guard spots for the Orange and Black will be Rick Grubbs and Mark McGuire.

The East Forest Bears so far have lost to Johnsonburg and Clearmont-Limestone. Rick Anders is the leading scorer for the Bears, averaging 15 points a game.

The holiday mat tourney at Randolph, N.Y. will be comprised of the Southern Tier Wrestling teams. Teams participating in the tournament besides Eisenhower will be: South-

Niagara Falls Despite 41 By Cal Murphy

CLEVELAND (AP) — Bowling Green State University defeated Niagara 94-86, Thursday night despite a 41-point effort by Calvin Murphy.

The 5-foot-10 Niagara ace tallied 15 points in the first half and 26 in the second before fouling out with 12 seconds left to play.

The taller Falcons dominated the backboards, taking 44 rebounds to 22 for Niagara, and led most of the way.

Al Dixon, 6-foot-9 center, scored 24 points as the Falcons racked up their third straight win after an opening game loss. Manny Leaks of Niagara fouled out with 7:55 left.

western, Salamanca, Casasada, Randolph, Bemus Point, Falconer, Gowanda, Pine Valley and Westfield. Eisenhower will be the only Pennsylvania school.

The first session of semi-final matches will be held tonight at 8:00, and will be continued Saturday at noon. Consolation matches will be staged at 6 p.m. Saturday and the finals will start at 8 o'clock the same night.

Seeding for the tournament was made by the Coaches at a meeting held last night. The wrestler's record was the deciding factor in his seeding position.

The Southwestern High grapplers have dominated the tourney for the last four years, and should repeat their performance this year.

After the finals Saturday night, a team trophy will be presented to the team scoring the most points, and individual trophies will be awarded to the winner of each weight class.

Sports Editor
Warren Area High School's wrestlers, in an impressive team effort, hung a convincing 28-17 defeat on previously undefeated Erie East last night, the Dragons' second triumph of the young season.

The Dragons won seven of 12 matches, including three by falls, and wrestled well in most of the five bouts taken by the invading Warriors.

Bob "Smokey" Sequist started the Blue and White toward the victory with a first period pin in the 95-pound class and Lee Bryan, who looked as if he has arrived as the Dragon heavyweight, capped the evening with a solid 8-2 decision.

In between, Steve Jones (120) and Jim Mead (133) scored falls over their Warrior opponents and Dane and Doug Sorensen and Mike Maines took decisions. For co-captain Doug Sorensen, it was the 29th straight dual match victory, a WAHS record.

In an exhibition match prior to varsity action, Warren's 88-pounder Dan Albaugh rallied to defeat Jerry Tate of the Warriors, 7-4. Down 2-1 after one period, Albaugh rode out the second, then piled up the decisive points in the last two minutes.

Sequist wasted no time in dispatching East's John Brown at 95, the first varsity win for the Dragon junior. He needed only nine seconds to take Brown to the mat, then rolled him over with a half-nelson and was awarded the fall with 58 seconds left in the first period, an important six points for the Dragons.

Warren's Mark Williams ran into Warrior veteran Doug DeForce in the 103-pound bout and came out on the short end of an 8-4 score. DeForce built up a 5-0 advantage early in the match, then Williams started a comeback and trailed by only two, 5-3 with 1:45 remaining. A reversal and riding time clinched it for the Warriors and gave East its first points.

Warren took the next four matches, opening a 22-3 gap in the battle before East scored again.

At 112, Dane Sorensen routed a stalling Ron Wasson, 14-1. The former 88-pound District X champ piled up points in every period, but Wasson on his back twice, but wasn't able to put him away.

Steve Jones, Utah's loss and Warren's gain, won his first match as a Dragon at 120 and it couldn't have come at a better time. After a no-takedown first period, Jones was awarded one point when Warrior Craig Atkinson was called for stalling by the referee, Dr. George Brett and rode out the middle stanza. In the third period, the Dragon grappler needed only two seconds to tally a reversal, sunk a half-nelson and Brett signaled the fall with 1:32 left.

Doug Sorensen made a believer of cocky Dave Lucas at 127, whitewashing the smiling Warrior 8-0. The Dragon co-captain took a 3-0 lead in the middle stanza after a scoreless opening period on an escape and takedown, then threw a "grapevine" on him in the third period. Lucas bridged to save himself from a complete loss of face, but the victory upped Warren's lead to 17-3.

Jim Mead came through with his second straight pin of the season at 135, putting East's Bob Kendrick away after 35 seconds of the start of the second period. A single-leg takedown gave Mead a 2-0 first stanza lead, then he caught Kendrick in a "cradle" early in the middle period for the fall.

East broke back into the scoring column at 138 when "Stormin' Norman" Davis, an East grid star, edged Steve Kaiser of the Dragons, 2-0. The decision didn't come easy for Davis, however, as he scored the only point on the match on a third period escape, then added another for riding time.

Mike Maines scored what proved to be the clincher for Warren at 145, a 2-1 thriller over Bill Truitt. A second period escape gave the Warrior a 1-0 advantage, but Maines returned the favor in the third stanza and was awarded a penalty point when Truitt crawled off the mat to prevent a reversal. The penalty proved to be crucial as Warren took a 25-6 lead heading down the home stretch.

In one of the best matches of the evening, Ray Lowe of the Dragons gave Warrior vet Fred Darby all he could handle before finally being edged out 6-5. Lowe battled from behind to knot the score at 4-4 on a reverse with one second remaining in the second period, but Darby switched for two points in the third stanza to an escape for the Dragon, the margin of victory.

Darby's decision left the score at Warren 25, East 9 and the Warriors still had a chance to pull it out. It required pins the rest of the way, but Bob Thompson wouldn't oblige at 165, despite a 6-2 defeat to powerful Bob Sienek.

Darrell Pusateri was out-matched but game against East's hope for a State Championship, Fletcher Carr, at 180. Speed and wrestling savvy kept Pusateri in the match until near the end of the second period, when Carr finally locked him up for the fall.

With the triumph safely tucked away, Dragon heavyweight Lee Bryan could have taken it easy, but he didn't. After falling behind 2-0 early in his bout with Woodrow Thompson, Bryan came on strong and demonstrated his mat knowledge and experience in handling the Warrior, 8-2.

The Dragon jayvees also stayed unbeaten in the preliminary, tripping the Little Warriors 30-26 with the help of a forfeit. East made it close by taking pins in the last two weight classes.

The Dragons host Erie Strong Vincent next Thursday night, then are idle until the Holiday Tournament at WAHS the following week.

Individual results of last night's match were as follows: 88 (exhibition)—Dan Albaugh (W) dec. Jerry Tate (E), 7-4. 95—Bob Sequist (W) pinned John Brown (E), 1:02.

103—Doug DeForce (E) dec. Mark Williams (W), 8-4. 112—Dane Sorensen (W) dec. Ron Wasson (E), 14-1.

120—Steve Jones (W) pinned Craig Atkinson (E), 4:28. 127—Doug Sorensen (W) dec. Dave Lucas (E), 8-0.

Russ Injured, Celts Still Defeat 76ers

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics survived the loss of battered Bill Russell to beat the Philadelphia 76ers 102-101 Thursday night and take over first place in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division by .031 percentage points.

Russell, already taking cortisone treatments for bursitis in his right hip, took a finger in his right eye at the four-minute mark of the second period and left the game complaining of blurred vision.

After the game, Russell went to a hospital for examination. The Celtics trailed 55-38 at Russell's departure, but, led by Larry Siegfried and John Havlicek, fought back to tie the 76ers 64-44 midway through the third period.

The Celtics led by nine points in the last quarter before Philadelphia's Wally Jones and Luke Jackson led a comeback that tied the game at 100 with a little more than a minute to play.

Then Boston's Don Nelson sank a jump shot for the winning basket. Siegfried got slapped with a second technical for talking back to referee Earl Strom, and was ejected from the game with 16 seconds left. Philadelphia then got off four shots before the buzzer sounded, but none of them went in.

Siegfried led the Boston scorers with 20 points. Hal Greer topped the 76ers with 20.

Since losing their first six games, the defending league champions have played at 13-3 pace. The Hawks scored in each period to beat the Wings for the first time in three tries.

Mohs netted his 10th goal of the season at 8:58 of the first period after taking a pass from Kenny Wharram.

Mohs made it 2-0 at 6:09 of the second period on a blistering 40-foot shot between Detroit goalie Roy Edwards' pads.

The Wings got back in the game at 5:42 of the final period on Norm Ullman's power play goal. But the Hawks scored themselves with Howie Young in the penalty box for interfering with Mohs.

Mikita scored on a Pierre Plote pass. It was Mikita's 10th goal in the last 10 games.

Ed Bello Named Golf Manager At New Course

Ed Bello has announced his resignation as Golf Pro at the Blueberry Hill Golf Club to accept the position of Golfing Manager at the new Cable Hill Golf Course.

Bello, who will be in charge of all golfing activities at Warren County's newest facility, stated that family and single memberships would be on sale in the near future at the clubhouse. The rates are $120 for family and $80 per season for single memberships.

Bello has also indicated that the Head Greenskeeper hired by the club has over 20 years experience in golf course care.

The Owensboro, Ky., team, trailing only unbeaten San Diego State in the voting, edged Philadelphia Textile 76-75 Wednesday night. Last week, the Panthers beat Indiana State 62-61 after dropping an 86-80 decision to Central State of Ohio.

Despite the setback by Central State, Kentucky Wesleyan edged Evansville for the poll's runner-up position. The Panthers collected 94 points to the Aces' 93 on a basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc. in the balloting announced Thursday.

San Diego State, 4-0, received seven votes for the top position and 132 points in the balloting by a national panel of 16 sports writers and broadcasters based on games through last Saturday.

The Aztecs beat Whittier and San Diego in last week's games. Evansville advanced three places while Trinity, Tex., held the No. 4 spot and Southwestern Louisiana climbed from ninth to fifth.

Akron, Indiana State, Long Island University, Winston-Salem and Cheyney State rounded out the Top Ten in that order.

Evansville beat Lamar Tech last week and already has played twice this week, losing to Utah State 116-88 and downing Seattle 78-66.

Trinity, Tex., was 2-1 in last week's action and has split a pair this week, beating Texas A&I 100-70 Monday night and losing to Oklahoma State 58-55 Wednesday night.

San Diego State is scheduled to play only the American All-Stars, a touring team of college graduates, this week. The Saturday game will not be included in the Aztecs' won-lost records according to National Collegiate Sports Services, which compiles the official records for NCAA member colleges.

Detroit Lions' Mel Farr Rookie-of-Year in NFL

NEW YORK (AP) — When Mel Farr, the All-American halfback from UCLA, reported to the Detroit Lions training camp this summer he had four goals.

"I wanted to make the Lions as a starter," said Farr. "I wanted to make Rookie of the Year. I wanted to gain 1,000 yards and I wanted to make all-pro."

Farr now has hit two goals. He has been voted Offensive Rookie of the Year in the National Football League by the overwhelming vote of an Associated Press panel of sportswriters and sportscasters, three from each league city. He has been a starter since the beginning of the season.

Farr isn't far short of his 1,000-yard rushing goal. With Sunday's game against Minnesota to go, he has gained 791 yards. That leaves him 209 yards short of his ambition. He didn't make the all-league team which had Leroy Kelly of Cleveland and Gale Sayers of Chicago running backs.

The panel cast 34 votes for Farr. His closest challenger was end Dave Williams of the St. Louis Cardinals, who received five votes. Dan Abramowicz, the New Orleans Saints' fine receiver, was named on three ballots.

Johnson, Kanicki Helped Browns to Century Title

CLEVELAND (AP) — One of the big reasons for the Cleveland Browns' Century Division championship in the National Football League this year has been the improvement of defensive tackles Walter Johnson and Jim Kanicki.

Defensive coach Nick Skorich figures their best days still should be ahead.

Both are 6-foot-4 and about 270 pounds and Kanicki will celebrate his 26th birthday Sunday when the Browns play the Eagles in Philadelphia. Johnson was 25 last month.

"Both have made big strides this season," said Skorich. "I believe Walter is the best left tackle in our division. Both should get better."

Coach Blanton Collier said last Sunday's game against St. Louis probably was the best of the season for Johnson. He added: "Both Johnson and Kanicki have played an improved brand of ball this season."

Johnson is in his third year and Kanicki his fifth for the Browns.

Recognition is the big thing in the National Football League, Johnson said Thursday. "You have to decide immediately if it's a run or pass. If you hesitate you're lost. I'm beginning to sort of smell out the plays. Your sort of sense whether it's a run or a pass."

Kanicki agreed. "You can't wait and watch," he said. "You have to sense what's coming." Kanicki is an ardent movie fan. He likes to see how his opponent operates and spends lots of time

SERIES STAR SIGNED

Bob Gibson, World Series hero for the St. Louis Cardinals and one of the most sought-after athletes on the banquet tour, has been added to the lineup of sports stars who will appear at the annual Men's Club Sports Dinner in Jamestown on January 30. Gibson won three games for the Cards in the Series and joins Buffalo Bills' fullback Wray Carlton on the dais for the fete.

LANDSLIDE PICK FOR NFL HONOR

Unitas Isn't Impressed With Most Valuable Tag

BALTIMORE (AP) — A quarterback with a creaky right elbow who has little regard for personal record, has been named the Most Valuable Player in the National Football League for 1967.

John Unitas of the unbeaten Baltimore Colts, imperturbable when faced with blizzards, line men or booing fans—or even with lavish praise—was as impressive as ever when he learned of his latest honor Thursday.

"It's nice to know that people feel I deserve the award," Unitas said.

Three Teams Honored as East's Best

NEW YORK (AP) — Penn State, West Chester State College of Pennsylvania and Wagner College of New York collected some of the rewards Thursday for outstanding football seasons.

Penn State, which meets Florida State in the Gator Bowl, received the Lambert Trophy, symbolic of the Eastern major college football championship, at the Touchdown Club's awards luncheon.

West Chester, which takes on the University of Tennessee's Martin Branch in the Tangerine Bowl, collected the Lambert Cup that goes to the outstanding Eastern middle-sized college football team.

Wagner, 9-0, picked up the Lambert Bowl, awarded to the outstanding Eastern small college football team.

Penn State's trophy was received by co-captains Bill Lenkatis and Jim Litterelle, who in turn introduced Coach Joe Paterno.

West Chester's prize was accepted by Coach Bob Mitten in the absence of his captain who was busy preparing for Saturday's game in Orlando, Fla.

Wagner's trophy was accepted by tri-captains Bob Malizia, John Gloisten and Mickey Vaughn. They introduced Coach Bob Hicks, a Penn State graduate, who remarked that it was a big day for his old school.

tas said, "but it doesn't make a whole lot of difference to me if I'm named all this or all that. Winning an award doesn't help a team on the scoreboard."

The 34-year-old quarterback, who earns about $125,000 a season, received 40 votes in a poll of NFL sports writers and sportscasters conducted by The Associated Press.

Defensive end Dave "Deacon" Jones of the Los Angeles Rams, who play the Colts for the NFL's Coastal Division title Sunday, received three votes. Two apiece went to running backs Leroy Kelly of Cleveland and Gale Sayers of Chicago. One panel member did not vote in the MVP competition.

Unitas previously gained the honor in 1959. He also was named to the NFL all-star team this season for the fifth time in 12 years, and has played in nine pro bowl games. He was voted the MVP in three pro bowl games and in the 1958 and 1959 NFL championship games.

The honors mean as much to Unitas as his NFL records of 251 touchdown passes, 4,066 pass attempts, 2,242 completions and 32,815 yards gained passing. In other words—they mean little.

"I'm only concerned about doing my job to the best of my ability," Unitas said. "That's all anybody can expect. If I do what I'm supposed to do, the job gets done. If not, . . . tough. . . I'll do it the next time."

Unitas rebounded from a disappointing year to capture the MVP award. The Colts won two of five games, and fell out of title contention in 1966 after Unitas suffered a shoulder injury in the ninth game. He finished the campaign in pain and with 24 interceptions.

This season, protected by an almost rebuilt Baltimore line which has allowed him to be trapped passing only 18 times, Unitas snapped back remarkably. He has tossed for 19 touchdowns and yielded 14 interceptions while connecting on 58 percent of his attempts.

Although recovered from the shoulder injury, Unitas is bothered with a chronic tennis elbow because of his peculiar delivery of a pass. As a result,

Johnny Unitas

'Doesn't Help Team'

Coach Don Shula recommended John out down on his throwing in training camp and at the daily practice sessions.

"The elbow burns sometimes even when I'm relaxing at home," Unitas said. "And when I throw there's a sharp pain. But it's nothing I can't endure."

If there's one misconception about Unitas, says teammate Tom Matte, it's that he is some kind of superman.

"People expect him to be an all-pro every game," Matte said. "As a result, they take him for granted. They don't realize he has the same emotions and drawbacks everybody has, and that it takes just as much effort for him to play. It's not easy for him, either."

"So much is expected of him, John is sometimes overlooked. He doesn't worry about completions or passing percentages; he just wants to win."

"That's what I get paid to do," Unitas said.

Two Sophs Leading In College Scoring

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Maravich of Louisiana State and Calvin Murphy of Niagara have played only three games each in their college varsity careers, but already they've gained a distinction no one ever has had.

According to major college basketball statistics released Thursday, sophomore Maravich and Murphy have higher scoring averages than any previous major collegian ever had at any ranking time in any season.

Maravich, son of the LSU coach, is averaging 47 points a game while Murphy, an oddity at 5-foot-10, has scored at a 45 clip.

There's a long way to go, of course, but just for the record, the only sophomore ever to win the scoring title was Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati in 1958.

Pro-Am Net Play OK'd By Britain

LONDON, (AP) — Britain's tennis fathers voted Thursday for open tournaments despite threatened suspension by the international organization that controls the sport in all parts of the world.

In open tournaments amateurs and professionals would compete in the same event with the amateurs getting trophies and the pros receiving cash prizes, the same as in golf.

The change was made by substituting the word player for amateurs and professional in the British rules. Thus all competitors now carry the same designation. It will become effective April 22, two days before the start of the British hard court tournament.

The International Federation had threatened to suspend the British association if it had gone through with its original plan to have the new rule become effective on Jan. 1.

By the action, the British have opened Wimbledon to the professionals. It has been the major shrine of amateur tennis since 1877.

Just how the various national associations and the International Federation will react is not known although few countries have come openly to Britain's support on the issue in the past.

Jack Kramer, who made pro tennis a million-dollar sport, said in Los Angeles "that I am convinced the players are the ones who really count and they will rally or band together and indicate if they play at Wimbledon, permission or no permission."

"This will create the pressure that will make it difficult for amateur officials to suspend everyone."

Universal suspension could wreck the annual Davis Cup competition.

A packed meeting of about 300 delegates voted in favor of the open tournaments. Only a handful voted against.

The decision to arrange the date for the revolutionary act at April 22 was made toward the end of a long debate. It gives the International Federation time to study the move.

That was the first of three titles for him.

Lew Alcindor, UCLA's 7-foot All-American, is ninth among the leaders with a 30-point average.

Florida's Neal Walk, who is eighth in scoring, is first in rebounding, averaging 24.8 a game, and Joe Allen of Bradley has the best field goal percentage, 80.4.

Terry Gamber of Northwestern is tops in free throw accuracy with a perfect mark of 15 for 15. Glen Combs of Virginia Tech has missed one free throw in 23 tries for second place. Seven other players have missed only one foul toss with their attempts ranging from 16 through 21.

Playoff Not Favored By Big Ten

CHICAGO (AP) — A national collegiate post-season football playoff got a cold shoulder Thursday by the Big Ten Conference.

The feasibility of such a plan, pitting regional champions for the mythical national title is being studied by the NCAA. But the consensus of the Big Ten at its annual winter meeting was against it.

Foremost backer of the program is Coach Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State.

"There was a faculty reaction against it because it prolonged the regular season," said Commissioner Bill Reed. "It also infringed on the conduct of the bowl games."

The conference voted to increase the traveling squad of the Rose Bowl representative from 44 to 50 players. This should benefit Indiana, which plays Southern California in the New Year's Day classic. The increase is the first since the 1947 Rose Bowl game.

Football coaches approved an increase in football tenders from 30 to 35. The joint meeting of faculty representatives and athletic directors will study it Friday.

Patterson to Fight Frazier or Kirkman

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Floyd Patterson will wait until after the first of the year to decide if he will fight Boone Kirkman in Seattle. Kirkman's manager Jack Hurley said Thursday.

Patterson has "a fat offer" to meet Joe Frazier in New York in February, Hurley said, and is weighing its benefits against a lucrative offer for a Seattle fight with Hurley's young bomber.

Kirkman has scored knockouts in 12 of his 16 professional fights.

Holiday Recess Subject Of Lively Con Con Debate

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania's Constitutional Convention delegates overwhelmingly defeated Thursday an attempt to cut short their Christmas recess.

After defeating by voice vote a motion that the convention meet for three days between Christmas and New Year's, the delegates adjourned until next Monday.

The proposal to shorten the holiday recess was offered by Daniel W. Shoemaker, delegate from York County, who pointed out that the convention would have only 48 days to complete its work after the Christmas hiatus.

Shoemaker said the decision, reached Wednesday, to recess from Dec. 21 until Jan. 2 was made "more in line with our selfish interests" than in the interest of getting the job done. "Are we so far along in our tasks that we may lightly cast aside the vote and mandate of the people given to us on the 7th of November just past?" Shoemaker asked.

Under enabling legislation approved by the voters last spring, the convention must conclude its task of revising four key sections of the state's 93-year-old Constitution by Feb. 29. It has been in session just nine days.

Shoemaker also questioned whether the convention has been adequately staffed to make it possible to meet the Feb. 29 deadline.

"In the last few days," he said, "I have learned that we do not have the staff we thought we would — that we will probably share with the tardy legislature the facilities that were so carefully planned to expedite our work."

"I have learned that many staff are so-called three-day weekers, and if we work a full measure ourselves, we may go unattended."

Too Many Govt. $$ Given Away

(C) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — The chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., has taken a new tack in his drive for economy in government. It appears to doom, for the near future, any prospect of enactment of tax credits against college tuition payments, private industry job training programs for the poor and a host of other tax credit proposals.

Mills, in a speech late Wednesday on the House floor, denounced tax credits as a "hidden" form of government spending that can often be costlier than direct expenditure aimed at the same objectives.

Those who advocate tax credits, he said, "should well note the fact that a tax credit which reduces budget receipts is as likely to force a general tax increase as appropriations for direct expenditures."

Tax credits are also wasteful, Mills said, because "most of the benefit of these credits goes to business firms or individuals who would have undertaken the desired expenditures even if no credit were available. For these taxpayers, the credit provides a windfall."

Mills cited the proposal, which has widespread support in Congress, to permit parents a credit against their taxes of part of college tuitions.

In only a "relatively few cases," he said, would such a credit make the difference between a parent's being able to finance his child's education and his not being able to do so. This "waste" factor is what makes tax credits "in every case" more costly in lost tax receipts to the government than direct expenditure programs, he said.

Mills also complained that the amount the government loses through tax credits is rarely known with any precision and that credits are not subject, as spending programs are, to annual review by Congress.

Mills' views are similar to those expressed in recent months by Treasury officials.

Delegate Israel C. Bloom of Washington, co-chairman of the Administration and Finance Committee, said all committees and subcommittees were free to meet during the recess, and many have already called meetings.

Former Gov. William W. Scranton, co-chairman of the Judiciary Committee, told Shoemaker his panel "would not be loafing" during the holidays.

Shoemaker's reference to "the tardy legislature" drew a retort from Sen. John T. Van Sant, R-Lehigh, who cautioned that such remarks "might lead to animosity."

Only about 12 delegates supported Shoemaker when his proposal was put to a vote.

Shoemaker also introduced a proposal — the 11th of the session — calling for apportionment of local government units based on the U. S. Supreme Court's so-called one-man-one-vote rule.

Under the proposal, cities, boroughs, towns and townships with multiple-member governing bodies would be required to re-apportion themselves within five years of the adoption of the article by the voters.

Moreover, local government units, like the legislature, would be required to re-apportion themselves after each U.S. Census.

Shoemaker's proposal was referred to the Committee on Local Government.

Gov. Raymond J. Broderick, convention president, reminded delegates that the deadline for submission of proposals from the floor is Jan. 5.

Heart Patient Sits in Chair

CAPETOWN, South Africa (AP) — The first man in the world to undergo a heart transplant, Louis Washkansky, ventured out of bed today for the first time since his operation 11 days ago.

He reclined "for a short time" in an easy chair on a balcony at Groote Schuur Hospital after being wheeled out from his ward. There were no complications as a result of this, a hospital spokesman said.

Earlier, at the annual graduation ceremony at Cape Town University, Chancellor Harry Oppenheimer awarded an honorary doctorate in science to Prof. Christian Barnard in recognition of his outstanding work in heart surgery. Barnard led the team which performed the operation on Washkansky.

Turnpike Go-Ahead

DOVER, Del. (AP) — The Delaware Highway Commission has given the go-ahead for start of a project to widen the Delaware Turnpike, part of Interstate 95, from four to six lanes.

The commission on Wednesday told Ernest Davidson, director of operations for the highway department, to proceed with plans for adding one lane in each direction of the 11-mile toll road. The project is expected to cost about $10 million.

KENTUCKIAN RINGS BELL

George Manulow from Asbury College in Kentucky is one of between 30 and 40 students from the college helping the Salvation Army this year. Some are bell ringing in New York City and in other larger cities in Pennsylvania. Manulow, who is now at Jamesway, is a history major and will serve as physical education instructor at a summer camp in 1968. He is a college freshman and a member of a Folk Singing group that will go to Pittsburgh next year to take part in the Salvation Army's youth group conference. The young man said he enjoys this work and has met many fine people in the Warren area. George wishes everyone a Merry Christmas on behalf of the Army. (Photo by Mansfield)

Episcopal Bishop Slated To Be Consecrated in Catholic Church

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The new bishop of the Pittsburgh Episcopal diocese will be consecrated in a Roman Catholic church.

"It's an ecumenical first," said Bishop Austin Pardue, who arranged the ceremony because the diocese's biggest church, Trinity Cathedral, is still being repaired after a fire.

"My problem was very simple," said Bishop Pardue. "I needed a church that would seat about 1,500 more people than the biggest of our churches."

He said he went to The Very Rev. John J. Wright, bishop of the Catholic diocese, and asked if he could use St. Paul's in the Oakland section.

"It's a great step forward in the ecumenical movement and a tribute to the generosity of the Catholic Church and Bishop Wright," said Bishop Pardue.

Bishop Wright said the Catholic church was happy to be of help.

The new bishop is The Rev. Canon Robert B. Appleyard who was elected in November to replace Pardue. His installation is scheduled tentatively for Feb. 10. He is now at his church in Palm Beach, Fla.

"Oh, he is very happy," said Bishop Pardue when asked how The Rev. Appleyard felt about being elevated to bishop in a Catholic church.

Bishop Pardue said such an installation had never been held before in a Catholic church. However, he said the diocese in Western New York was planning one in Buffalo a couple of weeks after the one here.

"I got idea from Buffalo," he said.

He said the plans did not have to be cleared with other church officials. "It was strictly between Bishop Wright and me," he said.

Asked whether this could have been done 10 years ago before the ecumenical movement had gathered much momentum, he said:

"I would doubt it very much."

Jarring Arrives In Israel

(c) N.Y. Times News Service

JERUSALEM — Dr. Gunnar Jarring, the United Nations special representative to the Middle East, arrived in Israel Thursday on the introductory round of his peace mission.

He landed at Lydda Airport on a U.N. plane and conferred with Foreign Minister Abba Eban. An Israeli aide said it was essentially a "get acquainted" session.

The U.N. envoy will meet Friday with Premier Levi Eshkol and then travel to Amman, Jordan, on Saturday. He has already been to Lebanon.

The social aspect of Jarring's first day in Israel was underlined at a lunch given by Gideon Raphael, director general of the foreign office.

There the Swedish envoy, who left an ambassadorship in Moscow to take on the U.N. mission, renewed acquaintances with two Israeli officials who had also served in Moscow with him.

They were Joseph Tekoah, who has been designated the next Israeli ambassador to the U.N., and Katriel Katz, now the director of Yad Vahem, an institute and memorial of European Jewry.

Jarring's schedule for the initial visit to Israel apparently does not include talks with Arab leaders in the occupied west bank area of Jordan. The local leaders have formed a committee, however, in case a meeting does take place.

The move was interpreted by some as an attempt by the Arab leaders to divert attempts by individuals to express the Arab point of view to Jarring.

According to this view, the Arab leaders will say that their position is represented by the Jordanian government. Attempts by some westbank leaders to press for a "Palestine entity," somewhat independent of Jordan and Israel have faded in recent months.

Recommend Starting Salary of $2,900

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, has proposed starting salaries of teachers with bachelor's degrees be increased $2,900 a year, those with master's degrees $4,100 and those with doctoral degrees $5,800.

A school board spokesman said the proposed schedules are disturbingly excessive.

The starting salary for teachers with bachelor's degrees is now $6,100, with master's $6,400 and doctorate's $7,700.

Two Youths Rescued From Clay Mine

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP) — Two teen-agers, lost about 30 hours in an abandoned clay mine before they were rescued Thursday, were pelted by falling shale but apparently didn't lose their sense of humor.

When two men found them, one of the youths said: "Are you looking for us?"

Harry Reibold, 18, and Michael Sanfrey, 19, both of Warren, were found by Mine Inspector Sam Manson and the superintendent of another clay mine nearby, Dino Golenko.

"We're sure glad to see you," one of the youths told their rescuers, who had joined other volunteers to search the dark tunnels.

The youths were hungry but reported in "very good" condition by Columbiana County deputy sheriffs. Their parents were enroute to pick them up.

Reibold and Sanfrey were found about 1 1/4 miles back into the mine after searches Wednesday night and early Thursday had failed to locate them in the mine near Wellsville.

The youths said they heard shouting Wednesday night and they shouted back, but "the ceiling caved in." They were hit by falling shale but not hurt. They stopped shouting.

The youths said they tried to hear traffic from nearby Ohio 7 but couldn't detect any sounds. Then they listened for bats and hoped the animals would lead them to an opening.

The youths were found near a back entrance to the caverns.

Protesters Make Their Impact Felt

HARRISBURG (AP) — Some 5,000 cigar employees, on a paid holiday of sorts, staged a massive two-hour demonstration at the state Capitol Thursday to protest a proposed 35 per cent tobacco tax, now pending before the House of Representatives.

"Your voices have been heard loud and clear," Robert Keating a Scranton cigar executive and organizer of the movement, declared as the demonstrators crowded shoulder-to-shoulder into the Capitol rotunda.

The cigar workers, 75 per cent of them women, were brought to Harrisburg to protest an $8.5 million increase in the existing 5 per cent excise tax on tobacco products other than cigarettes.

"We want Shafer," the placard-bearing protesters chanted as they were assured by their area lawmakers that legislative opposition to the bill was stiffening.

Gov. Shafer met with three of their representatives: Mrs. Ward Vail and Mrs. Sallie Smith both of West Pittston; and Mrs. Mary Krupsha of Exeter, all in Luzerne County, which has a heavy concentration of cigar plants.

"This is what government is all about," Shafer told the women. An aide said Shafer assured them he had no desire to harm the cigar industry, or any industry, but added that citizens must accept a reasonable tax burden if state government were to meet its mandated obligations.

Veteran Capitol guides said the assembly was the second largest in their memory, superseded only by a protest of bituminous miners against a strip mine bill four years ago.

Keating said 100 buses brought the workers here primarily from Philadelphia and Luzerne Counties, although Lackawanna and Clearfield also were represented. "We shut down the factories," he said.

The workers, representing roughly half of the industry's 10,000 employees in Pennsylvania, were paid their normal wages for the day, Keating added.

He denied a report that management had checked for absenteeism to dock them for missing the trip.

The demonstration, which lasted from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., was orderly at all times. But the mood of the workers was readily apparent.

"I'm a Republican and I voted for Shafer," said Mrs. Pauline Kotowski, a Philadelphia widow. "But if he permits this to go through, I'll never have any faith in him."

One woman, who refused to give her name, was even more vocal.

"We work too damn hard to have this happen to us," she shouted. "They're not going to close our plants."

It was the second demonstration against the tax in three days.

Some 300 tobacco farmers from Lancaster County marched on the Capitol Tuesday, while Keating and other industry representatives looked on.

Quarterly Inspection Cycle Now Set

For Motor Vehicles

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer signed into law Thursday a bill setting up a quarterly inspection cycle for motor vehicles designed to avoid last-minute inspection rushes.

The measure will take effect Feb. 1, 1969. A car still will require inspection only twice a year as under the present law.

But the current law has only two inspection periods; the new law sets up four.

Under this legislation, motor vehicles would be required to be inspected either during the first and third quarter or during the second and fourth quarter of the year. This spreads out the inspections.

The State Revenue Department will notify each motorist as to which of the two quarters his car is to be inspected.

Excluded from this inspection period change are trailers and semi-trailers having a chassis and body weight of less than 1,000 pounds.

Extend Deadline For Non-Catholics

MADRID—The Spanish government has agreed to a five-month extension of the deadline for the controversial registration of non-Catholic groups under the new religious freedom law.

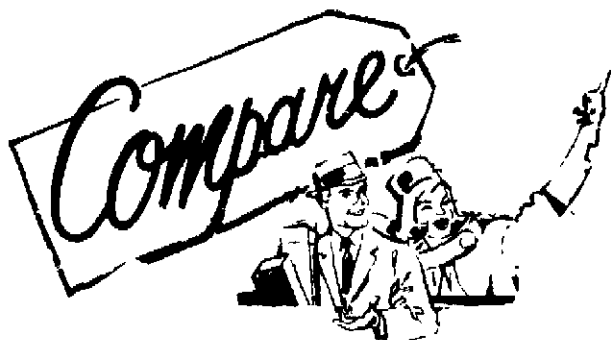

The extension is designed to provide additional time for the Spanish government and the Protestant and Jewish groups to find a generally acceptable registration formula.

Under the law, which granted non-Catholics the legal right to worship freely and publicly in Spain for the first time in 475 years, the Protestant, Jewish and other religious minority groups had been ordered to register with the government as "confessional associations" by Dec. 31 in order to enjoy the new liberty. The law was approved last June by the Cortes (Parliament).

Modern Schools Attempt to Recapture Advantages Pupils Had in Archaic Years

WARREN TIMES-MIRROR AND OBSERVER

WARREN, PA., FRIDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1967

(Special to the TMO)

Winston Churchill is reported as having remarked, "We shape our buildings, but thereafter they shape us." This is especially true of school buildings. Desired improvements in educational programs are frequently modified, restricted, or prohibited by the physical structure.

School buildings are almost as old as civilization. A cave probably served as the first one-room schoolhouse where father taught son the techniques of survival and food procurement and mother instructed daughter in the homemaking practice of the day. The curriculum in those days was "basic education", and the schoolhouse - cave served its purpose very well. Over the years, the schoolhouse was modernized to serve its expanding curriculum.

Dramatic changes in our society have rendered obsolete these older schoolhouses. Yet, recent trends in schoolhouse design are attempting to retain and recapture some of the unique advantages of those archaic schools of years gone by. Close and personal contact between teacher and child, individualized instruction, and independent study are, for example, concepts being adapted to today's larger and more comprehensive schools.

School building construction is today a multi-million dollar business in the United States. By comparison, it is also big business in the Warren County School District. The value of existing school plants is roughly estimated to be four times the assets of our nation's largest corporation. Nearly one-fourth of the people of the United States spend their working days in school buildings. In Warren County 25.9 per cent of the people are either students or employees of the school district (according to population of 45,750).

The rural one-room school was the typical school building during the early years of the nineteenth century. Frequently, it served the varied purpose as the teacher's home, schoolhouse, and community center. Usually these buildings were dark, dirty, unhealthy, and poorly suited to the purposes of education. Pupils of all ages were crowded together on fixed benches and were instructed by teachers of varying levels of preparation. However, many citizens of today have fond memories of these early schools. The depression years of the 1930's brought about a new era in school construction. During these years it was nearly impossible for school districts to financially provide needed facilities or to retire obsolete school buildings. The school

The Russell elementary school, located on Route 62 just south of Russell, is the newest building in the Warren County School buildings constructed during this period of time, to be compatible with the times, were stripped of all ornamentation and became "boxes" with windows. The federal government supported the construction of most school buildings during this time in the form of federal work projects as provided by the Roosevelt Administration. As history so well points out, the economic depression of the 1930's became history with the outbreak of World War II on September 1, 1939. During the next decade it was virtually impossible to secure building materials and skilled labor to construct school buildings; first as a direct result of the war and after 1945 indirectly as a result of the great desire for personal items that were not produced during the war years, i.e., cars, appliances, homes.

School building construction in the late 1940's and early 1950's were usually massive structures with "egg-crate" classrooms along both sides of a central corridor. These buildings have a severe, institutional look and a rugged, enduring quality. Roof lines were generally flat, building lines were straight and window areas abundant. Various design attempts were made to control the resulting glare and heat again, with a limited degree of success. Effective use of electronics and audio-visual teaching aid was difficult. Soon school districts were constructing large school buildings to house the increasing enrollment located in high-density population centers and in reorganized school districts.

The current decade has witnessed a dramatic change in school building design. These educational and architectural changes have paralleled the rapid changes taking place in our society. Educators, architects and lay citizens have teamed together in the re-shaping of the American school building. Recent school buildings reflect an increased concern with the environmental effects of the physical space of teaching and learning. School buildings are being scaled to the ages, interests, and behavioral traits of children. Classroom interiors are finished in stimulating colors and utilize natural wood, exposed brick and other attractive materials. Sound control, quality lighting, and controlled thermal environment are receiving increasing attention. Carpeting for floors is not uncommon. The inherent worth, dignity, and individuality of each student is being considered for the first time in the history of public education. Differentiation of spaces for students of various age groups, different abilities, and interest are provided. The rigidity and stiffness so familiar in older classrooms has given away to informal spaces. In short, the individuals responsible for attempting to design a physical environment that will not only contribute to existing theories of learning, but also encourage educational changes as required by society.

Continuing pressure has been exerted on School Boards, educators and architects to stretch the school building dollar. The elimination of corridors and basement spaces have been one result of this economy drive. Modular construction, repetitive framing, and the use of new construction techniques and materials have resulted in considerable cost reductions.

A study conducted by the American Association of School Administrators revealed that during a twenty year period (1937-56), general construction costs increased 275 per cent while school building increased 150 per cent. Economy is, as it should be, defined as achieving the greatest educational return for each tax dollar invested. It should not be, but often is, confused with cheapness, high maintenance cost, or omission of needed educational spaces and equipment. During the past decade school building designers have made excellent progress towards achieving true economy.

Perhaps the biggest problem that confronts a school district regarding the construction of school buildings is effective long range planning. At the present time, all school districts in the state of Pennsylvania are preparing a request "ten-year plan" as requested by the Department of Public Instruction. The specific details of this plan and its implication to the Warren County School District will be discussed in detail in a future article.

A type of a study to determine future school facilities involves at least a number of questions that must be answered before planning can actually begin. These might be classified as: (1) What kinds of educational programs and facilities do we have now? (2) What kinds of educational programs and facilities do we desire? (3) What physical facilities are required to achieve the educational goals sought? (4) Where should new facilities be located? (5) How much will the proposed school plant program cost? (6) How can the proposed school program be financed?

The planning and locating of educational facilities should be carefully coordinated with other public and private planning agencies. Schools, parks, libraries, churches, and social service agencies serve the same population with overlapping functions. For example, it is poor planning to locate a new school site without careful attention to the future location of parks, highways, urban renewal projects, or industrial expansion. These are but a few of the examples of the increasing need for coordinating school - community planning. Also, school districts must consider and understand the complex educational implications resulting from the rapid socioeconomic-political changes taking place within the school district.

Census data for short-time planning can be determined with a great deal of accuracy. However, when school buildings are planned the minimum expectancy of the building should be for a period of fifty years. Many variable factors must be considered that cannot be accurately determined fifty years in advance. Zoning and land use is a valuable instrument in school building planning. In addition to having a considerable effect on areas of future population growth, zoning and land use regulations has a direct effect on the health, safety, comfort, and convenience of all the people in an area because it impinges upon traffic and parking, civic congestion, slum prevention, sewers, water supply, fire prevention, community appearance and property values.

Any long-range building program must take into careful consideration traffic routes, actual and potential, within a district. Present and future traffic conditions as they relate to the safe movement of children from their homes to school and back requires special attention. Determining local school building needs should not be confused with the continuous and crucially important process of curriculum study and revision. School programs are too often adversely affected by the physical facilities. Educators endorse the idea that school buildings must be designed in such a manner that the facilities enhance the educational programs needed to serve the children of the district. Thus, good school buildings reflect current school programs and are flexible enough to be changed easily to meet future educational needs. Also, a well-planned school building will not only meet the needs of the youth of the district, community use of the school by adult groups must be included in building evaluation.

The financing of school building construction is a difficult task facing all school districts. Finance is the universal tool of social and institutional control. Money, or lack of it, will control the way an organization is operated and managed. Schools and school buildings are no exceptions. In education nearly everything in the way of goods and services must be bought and paid for. It is an easy decision to continue the use of obsolete educational facilities by not providing needed financial resources; more difficult is the creation of major improvements in school buildings by acquiring additional revenue. From hiring the first teacher and purchasing the first textbook to school building construction, finance is a critical determinant.

Methods to finance school buildings vary from state to state, although in many respects they are quite similar. Few, if any, school districts in Pennsylvania are wealthy enough to pay cash for the construction of school buildings. Generally one of four methods is used: (1) pay-as-you-go (current revenues) (2) savings, through the use of a capital reserve fund (3) borrowing money, or (4) a combination of the three methods listed. It must be remembered that, on the average, the State of Pennsylvania does pay for about forty per cent of new school building construction. There are many factors that determine this percentage that will be discussed in a future article dealing specifically with the Warren County School District.

Because of limited state support and constructional and statutory limitations on the local tax rate, most school districts need all of their current tax receipts to meet operational expenses, thus, the pay-as-you-go method is used only in rich school districts.

The savings (capital reserve fund) method of finance is frequently the building and site sinking fund. It actually is a variation of the pay-as-you-go plan of financing. Under this plan the receipts from a special tax or diversion from existing monies are set aside in a sinking fund until sufficient monies have been accumulated to pay for the proposed construction. This fund is frequently established by the school district for a specific school building project or site acquisition and for a definite amount to be accumulated over a certain number of years. Prior to expending the accumulated funds the money is usually invested and interest accumulated. The advantages of this type financing are very obvious, however, for most school districts this plan cannot be adopted due to immediate financial requirements.

The large majority of school districts have utilized the borrowing technique to finance school building construction. As indicated, not because of preference but as a result of necessity. In Pennsylvania, there are two types of Authorities that are most often used for school building financing. These are: The State Public School Building Authority, and the Municipality (Local) School Building Authorities. School Boards are empowered to select the authority method which they believe best meets the needs of their district. In either case, an "Authority" is a corporate creation for the purpose of financing and constructing needed school buildings. The "Authority" then leases the building (s) to the local school district. Actually, the building authority plan represents a way of avoiding antiquated constitutional and statutory debt limitations imposed upon school districts.

Most existing school buildings do not lend themselves to emerging educational programs. In fact, it is expensive, difficult, and often impossible to connect an overage building to such educational concepts as large group instruction, small group instruction, and instructional materials centers.

Today and tomorrow represent exciting periods in the history of planning school buildings. The Conant report with its emphasis on a common core of general education for all, along with special educational opportunities, certainly calls for a new concept in school building construction. The Trump Report's emphasized varying class sizes to meet the different teaching-learning situations; new learning techniques and media demand flexibility in school facilities. Curriculum designers will have influential voices in the school of tomorrow.

A future article will be concerned with an analysis of the existing physical facilities, school building projects underway and projected building projects in the Warren County School District.

The flag that Francis Scott Key saw when he composed "The Star-Spangled Banner" is preserved in the Smithsonian Institution.

3 County Communities Get Grants for Sewage Treatment

Warren Borough Sanitary Authority, the Municipal Authority of the Township of Sheffield and the Youngsville Borough Sewer Department were among some 543 municipalities, institutions and public schools in the commonwealth to be awarded state grants toward the cost of operating sewage treatment plants.

Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, Wednesday, authorized payments totaling $7,535,177.53 to those in the commonwealth who have assumed their responsibilities under the State's Clean Streams Law.

The payments, made annually, are set at the rate of two per cent of the total eligible costs of construction or acquiring sewage treatment facilities.

Warren Borough Sanitary Authority this year will receive $18,048.49; the Municipal Authority of the Township of Sheffield will receive $4,300 and the Youngsville Borough Sewer Department will receive $457.38.

Payments this year are $248,000 more than in 1966, according to the governor. Gov. Shafer indicated, however, that 33 additional municipalities, institutions and schools will benefit this year.

Last year's payments totaled $7,287,169.77 to 510 municipalities, institutions and schools.

The governor said, the total eligible costs for this year, on which payments are based, was $376,758,912.53. This represents the cost of sewage facilities already constructed and on which payments are being made.

The governor noted, also, that Pennsylvania is one of the few states to have a grant program of this type.

The charter was also draped in memory of Mrs. Ethel Baldensperger, a long time member of Grange.

For the program all joined in singing these selections: National Grange's Anniversary, The Grange Keeps Growing.

Hymn of Praise; National Grange Centennial. Several numbers were played on the accordion by Shirleyanne Johnson.

The next meeting will be a Christmas party on Monday, December 18, at 7:30 p.m. Members are asked to make special note of the change in time. Either cookies or sandwiches are to be brought. All small children are invited to take part in the program in any way they wish, by reciting, singing, playing an instrument, giving a skit or any other form of entertainment. Also, a change in the time of the Tuesday, December 19, Christmas program was announced. It will open at 7:30 (instead of 8 p. m.) because of the school children who will attend.

There is to be a $1 gift exchange, and all those bringing children are to bring a gift for that child with his name on it. The lecturer requests that all children come prepared to take part in the program. The women of the grange are to bring cookies.

At the recent meeting, N. P. Huck of the Bell Telephone Company showed a film "The Night Before Christmas" which was much appreciated by the audience. The meeting was brought to a close with retiring the flag, and the regular form.

Bishop Concelebrant In TV Christmas Mass Over WICU

Bishop Francis Whealon of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Erie, will be the principal celebrant of the celebration of the Mass to be telecast over Station WICU, Erie, at 11:15 A.M. Sunday, December 24th. Held on important occasions, the concelebration will be a Christmas highlight in the weekly series of Masses telecast from the Erie station each Sunday.

Also taking part in the service will be Fr. James Peterson and Fr. Immanuel Pallikunnen of Erie. Non-Catholics and shut-ins are especially invited to watch the telecast of this special 45 minute service.

The concelebration of Mass, the technical term for simultaneous celebration by two or more priests on the same altar, has been coming back into favor in the past several years. Bishop Whealon concelebrated with a half dozen diocesan priests at the ceremony of his installation last March 7th in St. Peter's Cathedral. Pope Paul VI several times a year, on very important occasions, concelebrates with as many as two dozen bishops and priests.

In Rome, concelebration of many priests with the Pope was the rule until the sixth century and continued on the great feasts until the twelfth century. The custom had spread throughout Europe but seems to have disappeared in the late middle ages.

In modern times, concelebration was restricted until 1963 to two occasions: the ordination of priests and the consecration of bishops. The Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy promulgated by the Second Vatican Council Dec. 4, 1963, extended the privilege to the Masses on Holy Thursday and a list of other special occasions. On September 4, 1964, Pope Paul and two dozen other bishops opened the third session of Vatican II with what historians list as the first concelebrated Mass in St. Peter's basilica.

There are a number of occasions on which the priests of the Erie Diocese are permitted to concelebrate and permission for additional ones is granted on application to the chancery office.

In the present discipline of the Roman rite, which will be used Dec. 24, on television, only the principal concelebrant says aloud the parts preceding and following the canon of the Mass. During the canon, the words of consecration are pronounced aloud by all and the other concelebrants take turns reading certain other sections.

Lakewood, Ohio Girl Becomes Bride Of Donald L. Hogan

St. Clements Church, Lakewood, Ohio, was the setting for the Nuptial Mass which united in marriage Rose Marie Ondrejch, and Donald L. Hogan. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Ondrejch of Lakewood, Ohio, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Hogan of 1114 Cayuga avenue, Warren. The Rev. Father Schirmer was celebrant of the Mass and read the double ring wedding rites.

The bride, escorted on the arm of her father, wore an Alencon lace dress with matching scalloped head-dress, and cascading shoulder length veil. The maid of honor, Dorothy Ondrejch, sister of the bride, and the two bridesmaids, Nancy Ondrejch, sister of the bride, and Joanie Hogan, sister of the groom, were dressed in raspberry chiffon velvet floor length gowns, and matching shoes and headresses of Dior bows with veils.

The best man for his brother was Bill Hogan of Warren, Pa. and ushers were Jack Hogan, Silver Springs, Md., brother of the groom, and William Minnick of Lakewood, Ohio.

Following the ceremony a brunch was served at Miller's Restaurant for the wedding party and guests. A reception was held at seven in the evening with places set for two hundred-fifty. The rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the groom at the "Old Hutterau" in Lakewood, Ohio. After a honeymoon of skiing in Vermont, Mr. and Mrs. Hogan are residing at 1114 Detroit avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a freshman at a large university in North Carolina, I have encountered some pretty weird people since I arrived on campus. But I am not especially bothered by them because I expect to run into some oddballs.

My problem is my roommate. Every time I walk into the room, he is there—standing on his head. I have become somewhat accustomed to this sight, although it was not easy. But the annoying thing is that he makes a terrific racket when he falls. When I am studying, these crashing sounds really shake me up. When I am asleep, they awaken me.

The students below us and on either side of us have complained, but my roommate says these headstands are vital to his physical well-being. He also insists that they help him think more clearly and that his grades have improved since he started. Well, maybe HIS grades have improved, but mine have become worse. Please suggest something.—FLUNKIN' FLOYD

DEAR FLOYD: Standing on one's head does improve the circulation and many headstanders swear by this exercise. The noise, however, is something else again. Suggest that your roommate put his laundry bag or a mattress or some pillows on the floor and fall on them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been going with this young man for almost two years. He has told me he loves me and has asked me to marry him one day. The problem: We have broken up three times over a woman twice his age.

The woman has a fine husband, yet she must see my boyfriend at least five nights a week. He goes to her house to talk for an hour or two after he leaves here. He frequently invites her to join us when we go to the theater or the movies if her husband is out of town, although he knows I do not like the idea.

He says this woman is like a mother to him, yet his own mother is so lovely and fine I don't know why he needs a substitute.

Is he having an affair with the old crow or am I nuts? I've told him how I feel about this "friendship," but he can't seem to stay away from her. What do you think?—SUE

DEAR SUE: I think your boyfriend's attachment to this senior citizen is abnormal and unhealthy. He doesn't sound like very promising marriage material, Doll. In fact the whole thing is like forget it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We were married recently in a private ceremony. Only the immediate families were present.

When we returned from our honeymoon, we received two letters informing us that donations to a cancer foundation had been made in our honor. We have heard of donations in memory of loved ones who have died, but never have we heard of donations to honor newlyweds. It seems somewhat morbid and in poor taste. Please comment.—UNINFORMED

DEAR UNINFORMED: Donations to commemorate happy events, such as weddings, anniversaries and birthdays are not only proper, they make better sense than an eleventh candy dish or a twelfth pair of booties.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage—What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Warren BPW Has Christmas Dinner At Three Flags Inn

The Warren BPW Club put aside major business and gave way to this season of joy and good fellowship. The scene was the Three Flags Inn on December 12 when members and guests assembled for the monthly dinner meeting.

The dining area was gay with the traditional decorations which were exceptionally pleasing having been fashioned by the committee members. A red flower box arrangement centered with a glowing hurricane lamp and banked with Christmas greens was the focal point. Jolly Santa place cards beckoned to each guest to relax and enjoy the festivities.

The Madrigal Singers of Warren Area High School delighted the audience with a musical tour around the world. The beautifully matched voices of this group presented selected folk songs and carols from different lands with spirit and understanding musicianship. These fine young singers deserved and received sincere, warm appreciation for highlighting the evening program.

Helen Olson presented a brief biography of Samuel Clemens Moore, the gentleman whose "Night Before Christmas" has delighted young and old for many years.

Carol singing and the gift exchange concluded the evening. Welcomed into membership at this time was Betty Rice.

Guests who shared the evening were: Ethel Kitner, Alice Wilson, Margaret Erickson and Jane Munn.

The committee in charge of arrangements included Helen Olson and Nellie Holmes, co-chairman, with Florence Hoffman, Lucille Leafstrom and Catherine Murphy.

Christmas Activities At St. John's Lutheran Church

Christmas activities by members of St. John's Lutheran Church had an early beginning in December, with an entertainment for residents of Mitchell Building at Warren State Hospital on December 9.

In charge of arrangements for the program was Mrs. Henry D. Petersen, Social Service Chairman of the Lutheran Church Women, assisted by members of St. John's, as well as members of other congregations in the area. Young people of the St. John's Church School presented a segment of the upcoming Christmas program to be presented at the church, and special music was provided with caroling by the residents.

Refreshments completed the program for the women patients.

The Church School Christmas program will be presented this Sunday, December 17, at 7 p.m., in the church. Directed by Karl Olson and Mrs. James McCormick, "O Come, Let Us Adore Him" will present children of the Church School up through sixth grade in a program of drama, song, and symbolism surrounding the birth of Jesus.

The fourth Sunday in Advent Service will conclude the season of preparation for Christmas on December 24. Following the service at 9:30 a.m., the Advent colors and decorations will be changed to the white of Christmas, and the candles prepared for celebration of the night which made the whole world light.

A Service of Holy Communion will be held at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 24, for the elderly and those who may not be able to attend the Christmas Eve service. Then the Festival Candlelight Service of Holy Communion will take place at 11 p.m., with special music by the organist, Mrs. Richard Kiser, and the choir, led by Director Martin Carlson. The Christmas message will be given by the pastor, the Rev. James McCormick. With the candlelight singing of "Silent Night," the service will close in the early minutes of Christmas Day.

From Our Corner

by Lenore McIntyre
CHRISTMAS BONUS

When you are wrapping presents for Christmas giving and when you rip the gay paper and ribbons from the ones you receive, say a little "thank-you" to borough council.

Just in time for the holiday season, our city fathers have announced the 1968 budget which carries no increase in taxes. Now there's a bonus that will last you for an entire year.

Last year's budget was about $8,000 higher than the new one because about half of the street improvement project remained to be paid. With that obligation discharged and no major expenditures planned a lower budget is possible.

But that is only part of the story. The one-half per cent earned income tax levied by the borough on Tidioute residents resulted in receipts of about $6800 in 1967, and is expected to do as well or better in the coming year. Roughly this is equivalent to between seven and eight mills.

Without the earned income tax, the millage levy could be as high as 18 mills, with property owners picking up the tab. As it is, those best able to pay, wage earners and those with taxable income, contribute to a more equitable system.

This makes the borough government look good while the school district is being reviled for its high tax take. However, the shoe would be on the other foot if the school district had given the full one-percent instead of having to share it with municipal governments.

Both municipal government and the school system carry price tags based on services provided for the public. And the taxpayer pays the bill, with his per capita, occupational, real estate and earned income taxes.

The cost of education and government is not determined by what kind of taxes are used to derive revenue. The figure remains the same whether you pay your share by means of a tax on your income, or on your property, or a combination of both. The earned income tax permits a lower millage on property.

The only difference to the taxpayer is where it's reflected. For instance, if the Tidioute borough government could have the full one-per cent of earned income tax the millage accordingly might be decreased to as low as 4 mills. But taking the one-half per cent from the school district would result in higher millage for that taxing body.

You can't lose for winning. And this season of the year reminds us that taxes have been around for a long time. Mary and Joseph happened to be in Bethlehem when the Child was born because the government required them to register in the city of their family for census and taxing purposes.

Council Sets Budget; No Increase in Taxes

Tidioute borough council, acting in accordance with the revised borough code, adopted the budget for next year and set the tax millage at Monday night's meeting.

Estimated receipts and expenditures for next year total $29,553.93, as compared with the 1967 budget of $32,835.65. Consequently, the millage will remain the same, 11 mills, allocated as follows: 6 mills for general purposes; 4 mills for lighting, and one mill for library.

The per capita tax, to be continued, is expected to bring in about $2700, and the earned income tax about $6800. The one-half per cent earned income tax is equivalent to 7-plus mills and enables the millage levy to remain constant.

Council voted to send borough secretary William Kams to a workshop meeting in Titusville on Jan. 11 and to have two representatives at a sewage facilities seminar in Harrisburg on Dec. 19.

Operation of the water system was discussed, particularly as pertaining to delinquent bills, deposits, charges for on-off service, and the future method of billing, collecting and book-keeping. Action was tabled until next month when the new council will be seated.

Numerous requests have been received for use of the large second floor room of the borough building. Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts and Music Boosters have been holding meetings there and council will permit more extensive use of the room to civic groups if they will contact Secretary Kams to schedule meetings and avoid conflicts with other groups.

Bills for the month totaled $1559.31. Parking meter collections yielded $289.25, and fines and penalties accounted for $59.50. The latter included a check for $20 from the Dept. of Agriculture which pays $2 for each stray dog held and disposed of.

The treasurer reported the following fund balances: general, $6,239.99; highway, $3.53; lighting, $1,290.58.

WSCSCircleHas Tureen Dinner

The circle members are selling fruit cakes for Christmas and anyone wishing to purchase one may call Mrs. Bill Kittinger at 484-3411 or contact any member.

Mrs. Jon Druggan conducted the devotional period and reports were read by the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Ronald Moore and Mrs. George Drukenbrod. The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. George McKown. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Jack Moore on Jan. 9th.

Tidioute Calendar

TIDIOUTE LIONS CLUB will hold its annual couples' party Tuesday evening, Dec. 19, at K's Inn, starting with dinner at 7 p.m.

CUB SCOUTS will have their monthly Pack meeting on Monday night, Dec. 18, because of conflicting church programs on the regular meeting date. All Dens will meet at the borough building at 7 p.m. and with their parents tour various parts of town to sing carols. After caroling, they will regroup at the borough building meeting room for refreshments.

TIDIOUTE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE will not meet this month but all members are reminded that the annual meeting will be held the third Tuesday night in January with election of officers and plans for the coming year on the agenda.

New Printing Shop Open at North Warren

A new general printing shop located just off the three-lane in North Warren has aspirations of bringing to Warren the best possible general printing service available in the area.

The new facility operated by William Bower and Tim Atwell is a corporation called Craftsman Printers Inc. The business, formerly the partnership of Bower & Keller located at 810 Pennsylvania ave., e., began operations at its North Warren location Dec. 1.

Construction of the building, which houses Craftsman Printers Inc., was just recently completed. The new building offers 3000 square feet of working space, and was constructed in such a manner as to allow for future expansion should more space be needed.

Several pieces of new equipment including an IBM Composer, scheduled for delivery in February; a new offset press and a multilith are being installed in the new building. According to Atwell and Bower the new equipment will help them offer better service and printing quality to their customers.

Open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday, the firm employs seven persons. The managers of the corporation - William Bower, brings approximately 17 years of printing experience to the firm, while Tim Atwell has been actively involved in the printing trade since 1954.

Services offered by the firm include all of those formerly available at the Pennsylvania avenue location, and plans for further expansion and the addition of new services are in the making.

Johnson, After Blast at GOP, Tosses Them A Few Bouquets

WASHINGTON (AP) — A milder-mannered President Johnson followed up Thursday on his recent blast at congressional Republicans by tossing them a few bouquets.

Obviously aware of the largely partisan backfire that followed his anti-GOP remarks Tuesday at the AFL-CIO convention in Miami, Johnson told a bipartisan White House audience:

"I say good things about the members of the other party—when there are good things to say. We frequently have that opportunity."

Johnson's audience had gathered in the East Room to watch him sign into law new consumer protections against flammable clothing, blankets, rugs, drapes and upholstery.

The President, departing from his prepared text, ad libbed: "I don't ever want to get personal. I don't want to get into name-calling contests. I don't want to say any ugly things about individuals. But I do about programs and about bills."

In his nationally televised AFL-CIO speech, the chief executive called congressional Republicans "nay-sayers" and recited the party's voting record on a list of administration-sponsored legislation.

House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan hit back Wednesday by asserting that "the Great Society of Lyndon Johnson has become a runaway locomotive with a wild-eyed engineer at the throttle."

Even the Senate Democratic leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana, got into the act by saying there are nay-sayers in both parties and that any praise or blame for Congress could be spread impartially.

Johnson told the bill-signing witnesses he hopes to get six out of 12 proposed consumer protection bills this year, adding: "This is a good service. This helps to make this a good Congress. This shows, I think, that there are good men in both good parties."

With many Congress members in his audience, Johnson voiced a strong appeal for Capitol Hill action on consumer legislation. He said:

"I am telling you, you had better get with it because the women in this country are going to insist on it."

He said women "are tired of eating diseased meat and seeing their babies burned up in blouses and having pipelines break under their houses."

The bill Johnson signed Thursday extends the scope of the 1953 Flammable Fabrics Act to include all items of wearing apparel and interior furnishings.

The measure also authorizes the secretary of commerce to promulgate flammability standards or other regulations whenever he finds this is necessary to protect the public.

The bill not only covers all wearing apparel and interior furnishings but also permits new standards to be set administratively to keep pace with the introduction of new fabrics and other changes.

Indians Protest White Man's School System

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Indian leaders gathered in Capitol Hill Thursday to protest, with quiet dignity, that Indian children were being destroyed by the white man's school system.

They demanded of the Senate subcommittee on Indian education a commanding voice in the running of reservation schools, charging that the schools were leading the children to alienation, alcoholism and suicide.

After hearing their testimony, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., subcommittee chairman, denounced as "barbarous" the government's policy of sending thousands of Indian children at the age of six to boarding schools many miles from home.

The Indians complained that the schools, by attempting to impose a white middle-class culture, were stripping the children of "Indianness," of personal pride and identity.

Dr. Alfonso Ortiz, a San Juan Pueblo from New Mexico, who teaches anthropology at Princeton University, centered his attack on the boarding schools operated by the Bureau of Indian Affairs for more than 28,000 children. The schools were "very bad things," he said, because they deprived adolescent and teenage Indians of the "psychic and emotional support" of the families in a crucial period of transition.

Crucible Steel Disowns Campaign Against Imports

(c) N.Y. Times News Service PITTSBURGH — The Crucible Steel Company Thursday became the first major United States producer of steel to disown the industry's current campaign against imports.

In a landmark move, John C. Lobb, president of the company since April and a recruit from the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, told a long-delayed annual meeting of shareholders here:

"Any attempt to govern free trade through quotas, tariffs or other legislation is an invitation to government control of prices and wages."

"In fact, to ask for government assistance in solving our own competitive problems is just one more step toward the nationalization of the American steel industry."

The domestic industry — through the American Iron and Steel Institute — had first appealed to Congress for a temporary levy — that is, a tariff increase — on foreign steel, then switched its support to an import-quota bill when it became evident that the tariff goal was out of reach.

Other steel executives had expressed reservations about the industry's anti-import campaign in private, but Lobb was the first to attack it head-on in public.

Senior spokesman for the Institute were not available for comment this afternoon. Crucible's tonnage production is thought to be the 15th largest in the American industry, but the concern-maker of specialty steels does not make tonnage figures public. Its annual sales, at about $320 million, are the 10th highest in the industry.

Deserters Apply for Visa To Finland

(c) N.Y. Times News Service MOSCOW — The four American sailors who deserted from their ship to protest against the war in Vietnam applied Thursday for a visa to go to Finland. The Finnish Embassy referred the request, a delicate diplomatic matter, to Helsinki for decision.

The young deserters presented international travel documents for aliens issued by the Soviet Red Cross. They asked for Finnish transit visas, good for a few days, naming Sweden as their eventual destination.

The Swedish Embassy reported that the sailors had not applied for entry permits required of Americans without passports.

Travel among the member countries of the Nordic Union is free, and no documents are required for travellers who arrive in one Nordic country from another. However, the countries refuse entry to aliens in transit if their country of destination has said that it does not intend to admit them.

The sailors are Airman Richard D. Bailey, 19, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Airman John M. Barilla, 20, of Catonsville, Md.; Airman Apprentice Michael A. Lindner, 19, of Mount Pocono, Pa.; and Airman Apprentice Craig W. Anderson, 20, of San Jose, Calif.

They deserted from the aircraft carrier Intrepid on Oct. 23 at the naval base of Yokosuka during a respite from action off Vietnam. On Nov. 20, they turned up in Moscow, presumably after a voyage on a Soviet ship.

The youths' request poses a serious political problem to Finland, a country eager not to upset sensitive relations with her Soviet neighbor or give offense to the U.S. To a lesser degree, this is also true of Sweden.

The sailors asked for speedy action on their visa request, stating they would like to leave here Friday.

Gold Buying Breaks Records

LONDON (AP) — Gold buying in London was reported to have broken all records Thursday amid confusion and uncertainty about new international moves to curb speculation in the metal.

One dealer said 120 tons of gold changed hands on the London bullion market. There was no confirmation of this, but if correct it would surpass the turnover records set last month after Britain devalued the pound and the American dollar came under pressure through demand on gold.

There was no evidence of direct pressure on the dollar Thursday from sellers. The price in foreign exchange markets held steady. But the British pound, a pillar of the international monetary system with the dollar, hit a postdevaluation low of $2.40265, or about one-quarter of a cent above parity.

In Paris, the market for gold ingots ran dry for the first time in years, though prices continued unchanged. Dealers said they could supply gold bars of one kilogram, 2.2 pounds, only after a two-week wait.

Fire Chief Offers Holiday Safety Suggestions

Warren Borough Fire Chief Erm Fitzgerald has offered several pertinent suggestions to keep Christmas happy in local homes and other places where people gather.

According to the chief, there are two things to remember about your Christmas tree. One, it is very combustible being filled with pitch and resin and ignites easily and burns furiously. Two, care and caution are necessary to keep the Christmas tree safe.

Fitzgerald noted it is virtually impossible for a non-skilled person to flameproof a Christmas tree successfully with chemicals or paints. The best bet is to follow some common sense rules - rules which have been developed by engineers of the National Board of Fire Underwriters:

Choose a small tree instead of a large one. A small tree can be just as pretty and it's less of a hazard. Don't set up the tree until just a few days before Christmas and keep it outdoors until ready to decorate it.

Set up the tree in the coolest part of the house, away from radiators, heaters or fireplaces. Stand it in water, which retards the drying out process; do not use cotton or paper for decorating the tree unless they are flameproof; do not place electric trains around the tree. Never use candles but electric light sets only. Inspect every socket and wire to make sure the set is in good condition. Discard sets with frayed wiring. When buying new sets, look for the Underwriters' Laboratories Inc. label or marker.

Provide a switch some distance from the tree for turn-lights on and off; use flameproof or fireproof decorations of glass or metal to decorate your tree; remove gift wrappings promptly after gifts have been opened.

Don't leave lights burning when no one is in the house. From time to time, inspect the tree and see whether any needles near the lights have started to turn brown. If so change the position of the lights. When needles start falling, take the tree down and discard it outdoors.

Attention should also be given to keep danger away from parties at home, school or church, the fire chief reminded. Don't locate the tree near any stairway or elevator shaft. The tree should be inspected every day by someone in authority. Don't allow smoking near the tree and be sure all decorations in the room have been fireproofed.

Avoid using net or gauze-like fabrics for dresses, costumes or children's clothing. If loosely woven costumes have to be worn, they should be flameproofed with the following solution: mix nine ounces of borax with four ounces of boric acid in a gallon of water. Dip fabric into solution, wring by hand and hang to dry. This must be repeated after each laundering. In case of fire at home, get everyone out of the house at once and call the fire department immediately. Be sure everyone in the family knows how to call the fire department. At public gatherings, walk not run to the nearest exit. Call the fire department immediately upon discovery of the fire and keep calm.
